ROME(3 March 1907); Her holiness the Pope today offered a High Mass of Celebration, giving thanks for the Russian failure to build anything. "He, he, snicker, shriek." Communion was also given. The host was the former French Ambassador, sliced up into centsy-teentsy slices. 1,000 of them, to be precise. Later on, reporters were allowed to interview the Pope, but this consisted mostly of her Holiness sticking pins in various parts of Europe and screaming, "Die, die."

...of the missing link. Dr. Pierre Bonnet revealed the discovery to the press pointing to a blow-up of a photograph. "It's quite clear, after all long, year-like work, the prominent nose structure over the eyes, the bowlegs, the under-slung jaw, and the peculiar forehead. Definitely a three-foot of some sort. The photograph was a picture of the young Emperor marching there the day he was crowned through the streets of Paris. The Emperor had to have a retina for an eye."

CORTINA After a refreshing winter spent on the slopes of this lovely Italian ski resort, Miss Sophie Loren is reported to be making a splendid recovery from her arduous duties the summer before. "This Spring I plan to go to the Balkans, and, with the what I learned in England, destroy Pasha White. Well, after what I went through in England for the glory of Italy, I could destroy six Pasha Whites. (Yes, yes, yes) (More, more, more)"

ROME: The Italian Government falls compelled to point out to the leaders of the East that the only neighbor of Italy who seems determined to better his way to additional Italian National Treasures is his own perfidious Turkey. No more treasures for you, Pasha White; Rosanna Podesta was just locked in her room by her father (Dad).

Which accounts for the gloom of the Camel,
And the Sphinx's inscrutable smile.

ISMIR: The Premier of the Turkish Hegemony looks with extreme displeasure on the movement of the Ukrainian fleets in the black sea. Informed sources indicate that the premier has ordered total mobilization along the northern frontier of the Hegemony but NOT deployment outside of Turkish holdings, pending further action on the part of the Ukraine republic. In other news, it was reported that the "Roving Ambassador" of the Balkan Union, A.Z. Djak arrived at Istanbul International Airport on a neutral flight armed with a sealed Diplomatic pouch. Considering the state of war that now exists between the Balkan Union and Turkish Hegemony, the shock of the daybreak both to reporters and Mr. Djak, was the extreme and cordial friendly treatment given him by certain members of the Diplomatic Corps, The Secret Police, and the Foreign Intelligence Agency, on hand to greet him. However the result of informal talks between the Premier and Mr. Djak was said to be that neither Country yet desires to reach any sort of accommodation on the terms desired by the other Country. But certain agreements on Prisoner-of-war treatment and exchange were reached, as well as a humanitarian agreement for elements of the Turkish Fleet on the Aegean and the Balkan Fleet in the Province of Athens to send aid in the form of food, Medicine, and blankets to recently earthquake ravished Corinth. At last report, Sailors and Marines from both units were working side by side, although somewhat uneasily, in the distribution of aid to the stricken Corinthians. Meanwhile, Sporadic fighting continued in Flodiv, Varna, and Vidin (Where it was reported that Balkan Troops have uncovered a site of a Ukrainian Atrocity, the Mass grave of 2359 Balkan women and children, machine gunned in their home.

The Cultural Trade fair in Sinope, sight of a series of excellent displays of Balkan trade items and culture, was said to be a resounding success with 53,000 attending the first week. One of those attending was the Premier himself, who said was said to remark on the great beauty of several of the Balkan exhibits. He was also rumored to have said; "It would be a tragic shame if this monument to the friendship of our two countries was to be sabotaged by any mis-directed actions of the Balkan fleets in the Black Sea, or the Balkan Fleets in the Crimea, against the territory of the Turkish Hegemony or her ally the U.S.S.R." It was here that the Premier decreed the Mobilization of all forces in the North, and in the Eastern Mediterranean.
