ISSUE #19

AUGUST 1989

This is the official publication of the Miller Number Custodian (MNC), who is Randy Grigsby. My address is 93 St. Vincent St., R.R.#3, Barrie, Ontario, Canada L4M 4S5. The purpose of the MNC is to register variant (Diplomacy) gamestarts and finishes. There is NO fee for this service.

Enclosed in this issue is a variant rating system (VPRS) established by Glenn Overby. Included with this, is the listing of the top fifty (active) variant players according to the game finishes listed in A & O issues #1-18. Now that some effort is being made to rate the variant hobby, maybe more end game results will find their way to the MNC. If you are a GM or a player in a variant game that has finished and you are not sure if the results have been send to me, could you please forward them. Thank you. I've also printed the current standings of Fred Hyatt's ratings for Colonia game finishes.

Miller Numbers issued since A & O #18.

THEME AND VARIATIONS #1

Theme and Variations is the zine of Mondoj VPRS, a rating program for postal games of variant Diplomacy. It is published by Glenn Overby, c/o Octagon Enterprises, PO Box 36983, Grosse Pointe, MI 48236, on an irregular basis. Price: 50¢/issue postpaid. (No subscriptions.)

---

Welcome to the first issue of Theme and Variations, and the MondoJ Variant Player Rating System. This represents the start of efforts to establish and maintain reliable player ratings for the variant branch of the Diplomacy hobby.

The MondoJ Variant Player Rating System was introduced in issue #6 of my zine MondoJ. It is a win/draw oriented system which also takes account of differing numbers of players, survival vs. elimination, and the joint wins featured in some designs. An extract from the original article is reprinted below, to explain the ratings.

"...Every player starts every variant game with three rating points. Some will be turned over to the winner or drawees; some may be kept.

- a. If you survived, keep one point. (If you were eliminated, you forfeit this point to the Win Pool.)
- b. If nobody won, keep one point. (If there was a winner, forfeit this point to the Win Pool. If you were that winner, it'll come back!)
- c. Your third point goes directly to the Win Pool.
- d. After all points are distributed, the Win Pool goes to the sole winner, or is divided equally among joint winners or drawees. Fractional points are rounded to the nearest tenth of a point.

* * *

To compute a long-term rating from a series of results:

- e. The three most recent results are doubled.
- f. The three next most recent results are added in.
- g. The arithmetic mean of all games other than the last six is computed, rounded to the nearest tenth of a point, and added in.
- h. The sum of e, f, and g above is divided by 10. This is the final rating.
- i. "Most recent result"--a game published in a later issue of the MNC's official zine is "more recent" than any earlier published. When comparing two games whose results are published by the MNC together, the one with the later Miller number is "more recent".

Finally, handling player changes:

- j. Only the player who started for each position is rated. (For the...exception, see m below.)
- k. A player who dropped out always receives a 0 rating. Points earned by a dropout are simply lost.
- l. A player who resigned may receive 1 point if the position is entitled to points.
- m. A standby who wins or draws, and who played at least four move seasons while finishing the game, gets the normal rating points minus 1.
- n. A player who has standby results on record has a rating computed both with and without the standby games. If the rating without standby games is higher, it stands. If the rating with standby games is higher, average the two ratings--rounding down to the nearest hundredth--to get a final rating."

In theory, a player who has "average" results over an extended period should be rated around 3.00; more with good recent performances and less otherwise. But in practice 3.00 is a very good rating, since the system is designed to require several games (or a big win or two) to build a rating. "Average" results after three games will only rate 1.80; after five, 2.40. Since many (most?) players don't have three variant games on record, much less seven, the average rating is well below the average 3 points available per player per game.

The data base for this initial rating list is taken from Alpha and Omega, the official zine of the Miller Number Custodian. The entire run of A&O, issues #1-18, was used, covering over six years of variant play. Of the 88 games reported therein, 81 are rated in full, 2 are rated in part, 3 are temporarily unratable, and 2 were not rated. The complete list:

- #1 (1983): 80M, 80Q
- #2 (1983): 80O, 80Y, 81A, 81E, 81R [76N not rated]
- #3 (1983): 82P
