Arrakis # 57
May 24, 1976
HDA, CDGO

Arrakis is a zine of postal diplomacy whose deadlines happen to coincide with my Economics essay. What a mess! So without any further adieu subs to Arrakis are 1¢/page plus postage. Game openings: Antigoni Isles-Leeder, Fisher, Ronald and Shea. Map in Arrakis # 51. Anonymous diplomacy--Mr X, Mr. Y, Mr. P, Mr. Z, Mr. W. Two more needed. Gamefees are $2 plus a sub. Sub only for anonymous or trade. All monies should be sent to David Head who gets his thrills counting all the money...5¢ add 3 pennies...8¢ in total.

Berlin: The Russian door has been kicked in and the whole decayed and rotted structure has come tumbling down. With Russian Bear, bloodied and on its knees, the German high command announces it will accept Russia as a puppet state. With a capital in Moscow, the rejuvenated Russians will hopefully respond to this call and march on the corrupt and treacherous Austrians.

"Coming, mummy." cringed Rudolph,

"Now you sit down at this here pee-ano and practice. We didn't send you to that music school so you could play Diplomacy."

"But, mummy. Diplomacy is soooo much more fun. You can't wipe anybody out with a piano!"

"The way you play I wouldn't bet on that!"

"Did I get any mail today, mummy?"

"No. What did you expect? Who wants to write to a freckle-faced monster with a pimple on the end of his nose? Hey, what's dat dere t'ing over there in the corner of your room?"

"That's my doop-lik-ator!" said Rudolph proudly.

"I publish a 'zine. It's called Proctospasm!"

We were planning to put a short aticle (article) on Einstein's theory of relativity but we'll keep it short and discuss space-fillers. Many people abuse this publisher's right by discussing it to great length, deciding what it's on and then suddenly finging that they have run out of space. It never happens to us.

JOHNSTONISBACKSOHERECOMETHEFRACTIONS

First, a joke.

There were three bionic scientists who got together one day to boast about their deeds. The Russian said, "We have been very successful, we can take human arm, build bionic body around it and have comrade out looking for work." Then the American spoke up; "That's nothing, we can take a finger, build a body around it and have him out looking for a job."

The Canadian, not to be out done says "You should see what we've done. We've taken a French-Canadian asshole, built a government around him and had the whole country out looking for a job!"

Odds and Ends

1. We thought we had a really great space-filler, news, announcement etc., last issue when we reported that Gordon Anderson had sued the Diplomacy zine Janus for defamation of character. We have now found that this is a "joke", and it is implied that everyone should have realized this. Apparently we weren't the only ones taken in as several people wrote in to the editors. Most hobby people are wary of Gordon Anderson, and after he threatened to trademark Dipcon, and then after that, reported he had lost all his orders for games in his zine, El Conquistador, because he was mugged, were ready to believe anything. The suing business seemed natural, and we got caught. The joke would be a little more obvious if they reported someone like Harry Drews was suing them for the things they say about him ("Drews Drive" etc.,).

2. Now that we're on the topic of Anderson, we might as well give a description of his zine, El Conquistador. It has excellent reproduction. But if incorrect spelling grates on your nerves, don't get this because, his spelling is atrocious. Issues are 12/$5.00, from Gordon Anderson, Lock Box 2788, Chicago, Illinois 60690, USA.

3. It has been announced that Canadian postal rates are going up. They will be a 2¢ increase this fall and a further 2¢ next spring to bring the rate for a first class letter to 12¢. The reason given is to reduce the Post Office's annual deficit of $626 million. Another reason (cough, gasp, and get this) given is that we have to pay for our more efficient postal service that has resulted because of automation.

4. If you had looked closely at the cover of last issue you would have spotted Huntsville on the map. If you didn't, it is just a little right off the centre of the map. As they say "All roads lead to Huntsville!" ((They do?))

5. If any Ontarians are interested, Robert Correll is organizing a flight from Toronto to Baltimore for Origins II, and more specific Diplocon IX, the IDA backed Diplomacy tournament. The fare, return from Toronto International Airport is $80.76. The dates are July 23-25. Brian won't be going as he has a wedding to attend (not his own dummy!) in Ottawa that weekend. Dave is considering going if he can dig up the money. For more information, write Robert Correll, 44 Rawlinson Ave., Toronto, Ont. M4P 2M9

6. The readers of Arrakis seemed to be a rather short-winded bunch. Surely you guys get sick of reading "Tarzan Goes Bananas" etc. from Steve McLaughlin. You must have something to say! "You're" Arrakis is what you make it! If you have formulated your own ratings system, have something to say about alliance, have a joke, send them in. Everyone knows that someone who writes an article knows what he is talking about. Be a big wheel, create an impression, fill these pages! We're so desperate we have to fill our zine with pleas for articles. Besides, with your your Diplomacy dollar being constantly eroding away, we pay two free issues of Arrakis for each page of material printed. Imagine it, two free issues for just letting your mind run free on a piece of paper. So write us now! If your regular enough, we'll give you the dubious distinction of "Arrakis staffer".

7. Can you imagine, singing "O Mesopodagia..."? That was just one of the names that the Fathers of Confederation were kicking around before they came up with Canada. Some other names considered at the time of Confederation included: The Kingdom of Canada, Laurentia, New Britain, Cabotia, Columbia, Britannica, Boretta and Ursalia.

7 1/2. Deadline for all games except the new one is June 16.

8. Not much room left so, here's a few Rib Ticklers to zap this issue.

"I see", said the Blindman, so he picked up the hammer and saw.

Is a person that studies the metric system a metricologist?
