PLEASE. Mail is the proper way to submit Postal moves. Telephone moves are always allowed, but if nobody's home it's your tough luck -- or, even if the message gets scrambled. Phone moves should be in case you couldn't get moves in earlier, not used regularly. This would solve many problems and complaints that have arisen, particularly in the ORTHANC games.

SEE BOTTOM OF PAGE 2 FOR RESULT OF VOTING ON HOW TO WIN THE GAME.

ATTENTION ALL PLAYERS, ALL GAMES

A BARAD-DUR Diplomacy game, be it B, C, or E, is won at the moment any player builds his 18th unit on the board.

PLEASE NOTE THAT THIS DOES NOT MEAN 18 SUPPLY CENTERS -- it means 18 units actually on the board, or, 2 more than all other player's pieces combined. The vote was 9-2-5 abstaining.

Margaret Gemignani, I suggest you rush out and buy a rule book, and then read it thoroughly. Postal presupposes a complete understanding of the basic rules of play. In this case you made 3 needless errors. (1) Your winter build also included moves for other units. Winter builds/retreats and summer retreats are not moves; no pieces may be moved in winter or summer unless they have been dislodged by spring or fall play and are ordered to retreat. (2) Builds must be ordered in home supply centers only. Silesia is not only not a German home supply center, it is not even a supply center, period, as the map I sent clearly indicates. (3) Builds may be made only in unoccupied supply centers -- in your case only a build order for Kiel or Berlin could have been honored. Munich, which is ordered to build, is occupied, and as such can not support a build there. In Postal you can not learn the game as you play; you must know it, or you will find more knowledgeable opponents eliminating you before you have fully mastered the rules.

Steve Cartier, I have allowed your build revision, since you have never played under my cockeyed system before. From now on, though, what you first submit stands.

THE MAD SATIRICAL MONK

London Times, Dec. 1 (1901) (Reuters). England is not interested in extending her territory any further in Europe," Sir Alfred Huffley proclaimed at Oslo today after receiving the first of the newly-created Nobel Peace Prizes (for some unknown reason all the science prizes and the literature award went to Russians). "We have found the Americas, Africa, Asia, and Antarctica much more promising. We have regained the American colonies...It will be 10 to 11 years to conquer the rest of the world. About Europe Huffley replied, "That hell hole? Look, fellows, we like easy pickings. Let Europe waste itself in senseless war, then we take over."
