GAME OPENINGS: (Game Fees are $10 per game, a $2 discount for any MENSAN, plus a $2 discount for any current batyville gazette player [even if dethroned]; other GM's; one-half plus copies of their zine.)

Regular Diplomacy: for the next Mensa game (#42) sign up with Fred Davis. Mensa 42 will be hosted elsewhere

Currently there are no batyville gazette openings

I have made the ZAT six weeks this time because for the Memorial Day weekend (in five weeks) I may be visiting my son in the Berkeley-Oakland area. In fact, there is a gaming convention up there that weekend, too. I have made a change in the maps for this game. I can now print them with the rest of the text. They are a bit too large, but making them smaller will be worse. Here to fore, I have either printed the maps separately, or photocopied on the back of the other page. This new way should prove to an extreme saving of time, (once I get it all set up) and be less prone to errors.

Yvette and I enjoyed our vacation to the mapboard. We saw lots of Castles, Museums, palaces, church windows, mountains, snow, and walking. We were getting a bit tired toward the end, so we relaxed in Berlin. I was very impressed by the Wall being down, and how much work there is yet to do in rebuilding East Germany's infrastructure. I expect it to take about ten years. I feel sorry for Poland, Rumania, Checkslovakia, Hungary, and eventually Yugoslavia, since they do not have a big brother like (West) Germany to help out.

Turkey -> Russia: Greetings oh fabled Tsar Andy! Congratulations on your retaking of your capital Moscow. Turkey offers support for your maintenance of Moscow!

Batyville: No problem!

Turkey -> England: Are you still alive?

Batyville: Barely!

Turkey -> France: In a jam?

Batyville: Perhaps a pickle?

Turkey -> Germany: What's going on in Ukraine? Attempting a southern offensive? I hope not.

Batyville: I guess not, ask your general in Bohemia!

Germany -> Russia: I'm generous to a fault!

Batyville: I guess so, I do not know many who would give up a supply center freely to another.

Germany -> GM: How about an earthquake in Tyrolia?

Batyville: Sounds good to me. Errrr since I could not find it in my rule book, perhaps you could explain how it works?

((Notice found in the Constantinopler Chronicles - GM))

As an incommunicado France crumbles before minor powers, which in turn are threatened by Austria-Hungary, Sultan Jim the Great of Turkey feels obliged to restore balance by challenging Emperor Jim the Gullible to a real fight.

Ablepsia PRESS: Winter 1901

Turkey -> Austria: The Sultan asks that you vacate Bulgaria immediately. Go quietly, or risk total annihilation. Have a nice day.

Turkey -> Italy: See? I kept my word.

Batyville: Does this have anything to do with real estate for sale in Puerto Rico?

Turkey -> Germany: Uh, Oh, looks like E/F -vs- G.

Batyville: Or E/F/G against the world?

Venice: A record number of volunteers has allowed King Vittorio-Emmanuele III to raise an army for the protection of our beleaguered Queen of the Adriatic, Venice. the army, commanded by General Ameglio, will be known as the Venetian Army. Attempts to solicit the support of our friends, the Venusian armed forces (in addition to the moral support already given by the unarmed Venus of Milo) have been unsuccessful.

Batyville: I received a proposal for a concession to Italy. Although I usually take all proposals seriously, this one seems a bit premature.

Batyville: To facilitate the flow of the game now that the 1901 Winter builds are over, Batyville proposes a combined season, as follows. (Winter Builds-Spring Moves) and (Fall Moves). To commence Winter 1902. Votes on this idea are due next time YEA or NAY.

England -> Germany: Lets be careful with our jumper units, else war might break out in Europe.

Batyville: Too late!

England -> France: I don't want to see any Frog fleets in the English Channel, OK?

Batyville: Of course!

England -> Turkey : Don't I know you from somewhere?

Germany -> GM: I hear there is gold in them there Alps?

Batyville: We didn't find any while we were there. Is that why you moved to Tyrolia?

Germany -> Austria: Just doing what you ordered!

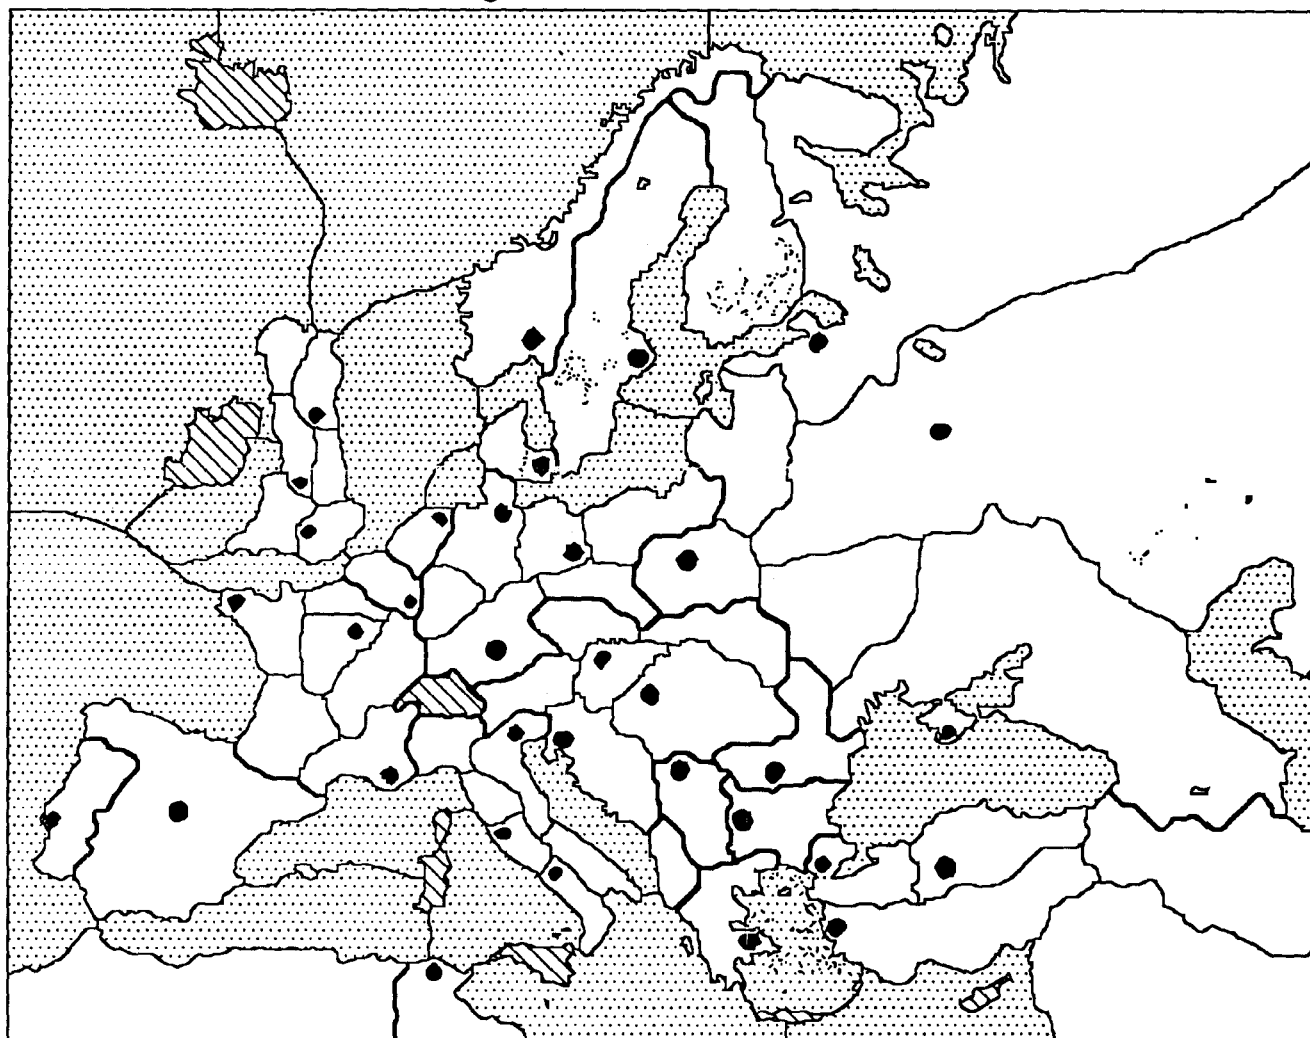

Germany -> Turkey: Or, was it what you ordered?

Batyville: Lets keep our negotiations straight!
