MOVES FOR ALL GAMES ARE DUE OCTOBER 12 at noon. These will go in the first issue of Ragnarok. Sub rate is 8/$1. If you don't send along money for a sub to that, I'll just transfer it from Blood and Iron.

Don't dilly-dally in getting your moves in. I am not always able to wait around for delinquents.

Note that "Box 1021" is better, in my address, than "114B".

Press is on page 2. This issue also contains part of the map for Worldiplomacy.

72.23h - reply to Todd Roseman

John Caton

I agree with Todd that hindsight is best sight, but if communication had been open to Russia a joint control of Rumania would have been accomplished and Austria would still have been taken. Although there was the possibility of 28PF's going to Austria the probability was low considering all the other areas that had to be covered. Blocking France from Als-Lor was an excellent move, but it did not have to be taken. Obviously the USA was willing to aid in such a block (1937 placements). So at least 10 to 15 PF's could have been used to greater advantage elsewhere, such as Germany to eliminate the French U or start to work on the British U. The heavy commitment to Austria was somewhat within reason, but France could have been stymied for the entire game without the overkill.

4000AD Press: Commander Slap Dullblade of SCUM was blissfully unaware of the Pavan (Pavoan?, Pavoic??, Pavorian???, oh, the hell with it) dragnet. However, had he known, he couldn't have cared less. For he was marooned on the Home Planet of the Holier-than-Thou Empire, founded more than a millenia ago by the great evangelist, Vocal Cord.

Slap had become lost again after talking with his admiral (twice in one day was about his average) and had stumbled on to this empire which no one had conquered (because no one had wanted to). The Grand Poobah of the Empire had plied Our Hero (?) with narcotics and drugs and drink and beautiful women in an effort to gain intelligence from him. The results would have been less surprising had the Poobah known that Dullblade had no intelligence, period!! Dullblade was unaware of the Poobah's evil intentions and was enjoying the whole thing.

Will Dullblade escape the clutches of the evil Poobah? (Not if he's lucky.) Return next installment for the answer to the musical question, "What shall we do with a drunken sailor?"

73Adi Press: (Jordan-On-Nerves) You guys know ya haven't a prayer against me- you also oughta know I'm invincible- so why not go home before you get injured. After all, I'm only a sub and haven't written a single communication for this game yet!

Book of Stab, 19160 Olympia St, Northridge, Calif 91324 has openings for Anarchy IV, Youngstown Variant, regular Dippy, and Twin Earths II -- same as Twin Earths except that a space on one board is adjacent to all spaces on the second board that its counterpart is adjacent to: PorI is adjacent to MidI, SpaI, PorII, MidII, and SpaII. Fee $1 plus $1 game deposit plus sub (8/$1). There's a different GM for each game. All of the five pubbers are neos, but have done well so far. Make checks to George Wallace Jr.
