Propaganda --

Bucharesti, Rumania -- The King of Rumania, Karl von Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen, hosted secret talks at his palace in Galatz. Present were representatives of Sultan Abdul-Hamid, King Victor Immanuel III, and Tsar Romanov. Nothing has been made public at this time, but observers feel that Russia and Turkey are in the process of settling their disputes in the Balkans. So far, however, no overt acts which would exhibit the presence of a Russo-Turkish rapprochement have been made. Turkey is expected to accept Russian offers and relinquish her claims over Sevastopol. ##### Count Alexis Trubloff, head of the Russian delegation to the Galatz Conference, has not given any statements to the press, something which is not unexpected in view of recent Russian silence. Tewfik Pasha, the head of the Turkish delegation, did, however, say to the press, "It is hoped that peace can come for Turks and Russians alike."

Elkaterinsburg -- No attempt has been made by palace officials to deny rumors about the death of Tsar Ivan. Over six months have now passed since the last official communique from the Winter Palace in Elkaterinsburg. Along with the absence of news of the Tsar's state of health is the absence of confirmation or denial of the "Troika" which has supposedly been set up to act as regent for the Tsar. It is rumored that Count Alexis Trubloff, Admiral Nikolai Khranin and Crown Prince Seviotov, the Tsar's grandson and only heir to the Imperial Throne, are in complete charge of Russian affairs.

London -- A letter of thanks was sent to the Russian Tsar for nothing. The same for the Austrian Emperor.

London -- France: If you can't lick them, join them!

London -- Austria and Russia: No, no, don't touch that supply center and you know which one I mean!

Paris (16 Oct. 1903) -- At least we French know that a 90° turn is a right turn. To turn 180° is to reverse course.

Deadline for WINTER, 1904 builds/removals -- Noon, Wed., June 14.

Vienna -- The Senator from Tirol, speaking before that body, moved for an immediate declaration of war against the Reich. "Although all eyes nervously watch the Alps, there is little we can do now if the Kaiser decides to betray us," said von Korber. "However, the Fourth Army under von Kurst has been sent north as a precautionary measure." ##### It is rumored that War Minister Kossuth is going to Paris for a conference with the President. ##### In other war news, the government predicted the final capitulation of Turkish forces in Greece by November.

Propaganda --

No Source Given -- No comment!

To whom it may concern:

Be it hereby stated that, having obtained for the most part their objectives in the present European war, the governments of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, the Russian Empire, and the Ottoman Empire, withdraw from that conflict and declare themselves receptive to any and all offers of armistice. Due to the many changes of government which have taken place, our position is untenable. We therefore unconditionally surrender our forces to the Western Powers. We invite their mercy.

(Signed)

Alexis, Tsar of all the Russias, Grand Duke of Moscow, Emperor of Japan, King of the Afghans, Sultan of Bulgaria, Prince of Rumania

Karl, Emperor of Austria, King of Hungary, King of Serbia, Viceroy of the Hellenes, and Doge of Venice

Abdul Hamid, Sultan of the Ottomans, Emperor of Byzantium, King of Syria, Khedive of Egypt, Prince of Assyria and Babylon, Caliph of Mecca, and King of Arabia

GM Note -- We await receipt of a formal document of armistice, signed by the three nations of the FEG's and the three nations of the RAT's. But let us remind the FEG's that victory is not yet theirs. The Wild-Card Kingdom of Italy still remains in the game; he must either surrender or be conquered before the FEG's can sheathe their swords and claim total victory.

Propaganda --

Constantinople -- A large group of Italians were captured trying to bury a small ship on top of Mount Ararat! Papers on the vessel show it to be the M. Buonarroti that the Italians have been screaming about. Does this mean that in the same manner that they have tried to foist Columbus on the world as the discoverer of the New World, they are now trying to convince the world that Noah was an Italian!???

London (UPI) -- The British High Command announced the buildup of a large number of warships in the Bay of Biscay. Brest and other large ports are reportedly outfitting still more ships. ##### The BHC disclosed that a note had been sent warning the French that any movement toward the coast of Britain could result in war.

Paris -- It was with deep regret that today the President announced the declaration of war with the British Empire. "We have made every concession possible, both in the European and colonial theatres, in the hope of forging a working alliance. But the British tried to force more and ever more concessions from our government, finally going so far as to invade our western shores, and attack our colonial forces even now relieving pressure from their navy in Africa and Asia. Therefore, our government has achieved a rapprochement with that of the German Empire, and together we will punish the British. An agreement has also been reached with the emissary of the Czar, and it is expected that Russian forces will aid in the repudiation of the British, as Russia has always been a staunch and loyal ally of the French Republic."

Vienna -- Rome: Thanks for the advice. I hope it works. See you in Constantinople.

Propaganda --

Austria -- Hell!

With the Imperial German Fleet, 17 km off the Yorkshire coast -- Admiral von Pohl, in an official release to the press, declared that the British 4th Fleet, operating in the North Sea, has been for the most part disabled, sunk, or scuttled. "A battle was joined approximately 37 km off Heligoland, when the British Battleship Connaught and four auxiliary craft began shelling the Fleet. The battle was joined on 18 November, although visibility was poor and seas were somewhat high. In spite of this handicap, the battleship Karl von Clauswitz managed to sink two light cruisers of the British fleet, the Prince Albert and the Boston. The Quicksilver, a destroyer, was disabled and finally scuttled 50 km off the British coast. The Clauswitz was joined by the Hellenberg and the Prince, and the three dreadnaughts harried the British battleships, sinking the Chandernagore, and driving the rest of the fleet back towards the British Isles. The seven ships of the line presently were joined by nine others, and finally the rest of the fleet. By this time the British had lost one dreadnaught, three light cruisers, three destroyers, and seven auxiliary craft. The majority of those ships remaining were heavily damaged, and the Connaught had to be abandoned outside Boston. All considered, the Imperial German Navy has duplicated (and surpassed) the French and Russian victories off the Isle of Wight and Trondjem, respectively." ##### Off the record, von Pohl predicted that the final British collapse would come in mid-summer of 1903, "when the blockade begins to take effect." He denied the rumors of a coming invasion across the straits of Dover. "The English have the remainder of their fleet and Home Guard in the south of England; if there is an invasion, it would come in Cornwall or York, not near London."

Moscow -- A press release by the Minister of Commerce, U. Traveleski: To all prospective allies -- bien venuto. It is the wish of the Czar to encourage you to visit the motherland this summer, or better yet, to let us visit you. While our amicable horde of military attaches visits your beautiful capitals, your envoys can enjoy such uniquely Russian sports as serfing, czar-hazing, and monking around with Raspustin. So don't waste another minute, write for our free brochure, "A Guided Tour of Mother Russia" or, "Romanov on Your Own". Either way, pax!

Moscow -- In an editorial, the Moscow Diplomatic Magazine of Diplomacy (MDMD) reported that the Czar was considering an alliance with Austria-Hungary. His stipulation was that they would have to give up Bud., Vie., Trieste, and Serbia. In his benevolence, he decided to let them keep Tyrolia.
