Propaganda --

St. Petersburg (the Winter Palace) -- At a magnificent 51-course banquet celebrating the advent of peace in Europe, His Imperial Majesty Alexander IV, Emperor of All the Russias, arose to address His assembled guests. The Supreme Autocrat toasted the Turkish Ambassador for the faithfulness with which the Russo-Turkish alliance has been kept. "Without the assistance of our southern allies, peace would have been impossible", noted the Tsar. #### Following dinner, guests were treated to a speech by Grand Marshall Baileyov. Baileyov commended the superior performance of Russian troops during the recently-concluded war, but soon entered upon an analysis of the causes of the war. #### Noting that dangerous revolutionary tendencies had necessitated Russo-Turkish intervention in the Hapsburg and Hohenzollern domains, the Grand Marshall quickly moved to a discussion of the causes of war with France and England. "Basic perfidy!" emphasized Baileyov. "The leaders of both France and England were notoriously unreliable. Indeed, we ourselves have suffered at their hands in other realms." Listeners knowledgeable in diplomatic affairs took this to be a reference to games BARAD-DUR G and X-12. "Of course", concluded Baileyov, "it was first necessary to insure the demise of England, before that of France. Whereas the French leadership was predictably treacherous, the English leadership -- against all laws of logic -- was the sort which would turn on its best ally! Such nations do not deserve to exist." With this conclusion, Baileyov's speech was rewarded with a fifteen-minute standing ovation. Partying continued well into the night.

QBC (Continued) --

Propaganda -- (Most continued from last issue) --

London: (FTA) Oooooops.....some blood just got on the knife. Oh well -- I doubt if it will work. Meanwhile, Buddy, how's it going for YOU?

London: (FTA) Note the insidious little scheme by which I have stopped Black Propaganda. All of you will have received a postcard with the initials FTA on it, the letters QBC, and my signature. In effect, I will have a different set of code letters each season, and you will all get cards. Sinister forces of world Ver Ploegism are again at work. Any of you that think you can copy my signature are again welcome to try.Hell -- this takes all the FUN out of everything, doesn't it guys?

London (At the Exchange): Everything seems to be quieting down -- particularly in Germany, Turkey, and Italy. Who gets to be next? What's that you say? England? Could you BE so cruel?

London to World Bank: (FTA) You bet your Pounds that I can't get away from this stuff. I used to think it was Johnston, but now he's fallen by the wayside, and it's STILL on. I figure it's George now, because he's jealous of the skiing. But, who can blame him? It's easy to tell Buddy's efforts though -- just look for a lot of.....in substitution for the more customary punctuation which ought to be used. Oh, I use them sometimes, but five or six times in a paragraph? Never!

Vienna -- Geneva: Thanks for shutting up the Mouth for one season, anyhow. Stick a ski pole down his throat if he opens it again!

Vienna -- All the world's a stage, and isn't that a great forum for a debacle?

Berlin -- GREAT VICTORY ON THE AUSTRIAN FRONT. The valiant men of the 1st SS Panzer, 227 Volksgrenadier, 15th Panzer Grenadier, and 320 Infantry today wiped out the mongrelized hordes of the Star of David Brigade in heavy fighting in Bohemia.

QEC Diplobourse -- We tentatively have enough persons signed up to get this thing going (Schelz, Ferris, Borecki, St. Cyr, Wells, Linden, Lindsay, Ver Ploeg, Rosamilia). However, only two of the above bothered to vote on the questions we asked in DPMA #30, and there is some question whether all of those signed up will play. And the two which did vote (Schelz, Linden) split on some of the questions. So -- GM says "Go" (ref. rule #4) -- so start sending in "bids" and "offers". The rules, in view of the inconclusive voting, will be as written in DPMA #30 -- with the exception that player-to-player transactions will be allowed (ref. Rule #15), under the same reporting procedures as set forth in rule #15 of the "Q-Bourse" rules (read this carefully). We'll give the proposed rules a try for a few rounds, and then make any adjustments which may prove necessary. And players interested in this Bourse may confirm by sending in "bids"/"offers"; if an insufficient number so confirm, this Bourse will be dropped. QEC Players may participate in Bourse, and additional players may join (by sending in "bids"/"offers" NLT June 23.
