One reader commented that my article, Autumn Memories, in #128 sounded "so mournful." I didn't think of it at the time I was writing the article, but perhaps in looking back at what was for me the golden period of the hobby I am sorry to see it gone. But it is one of these things where you can't continue to live in the past. It is sort of like leaving home for good — one day the time comes and you have to go forward with the future and leave the past behind. It is emotionally difficult to do and to make the transition easier you use the memories of the past (the good old days) to help you over some of the current periods of uncertainty. Mournful thoughts by Doug.
