EGGNOG #21 is published, mostly written, typed, and distributed by Konrad H. Paumeister, of 11416 Parkview Lane, Hales Corners, Wisconsin, 53130 U.S.A. My phone number, to be used between 7 and 10 p.m., is (414) 425-4631. This zine is a tri-weekly thing, alt ough issues between issues (such as this one) are not uncommon at all. There are no game openings at the present time, but I am tossing around the idea of having a Demonstration game of some sort, with expert analysis, and an inquiring in the direction of such experts. Subscriptions to this zine, which are always available, are 10 issues for $3.50. &GGNOG #21 is a product of EGGNOG interprises, in this case, #22. Samples 30 for a 15¢ stamp, although I/11 pream down and give one to you for free if you're cheap.

THE CYERSTUFFED RECLIER. VIII THE EDITOR'S COLUMN)

- 1. Today (I have to start numbering these zines by days, not months) we have a heading from Paul McCartney & Wings -- after going through some old singles, I noticed this oft-too-often-played one, which hit me right in the face. While I spotted another god one from Cream, I thought that this Wings tune deserved attention. And so it got some ... (Did anybody notice that of the four ex-legiles only two are still cranking out songs? Ringo has left for the screen, and Lennon doesn't do much of enything any more, Goes he?) I didn't even have to change any of the wording, this time!
- lob Sergeant has openings in a world-wide variant that he has designed, called, simply, Global Variant, or somesuch. This will be played for subscription costs only (10 for $2.50) to his zine. Saint leorge & The Drogon, using conthly deadlines. A can't recommend hese games highly enough; lot is one of the best gamesmasters I've 'er played under. Inquire for maps, but please do so only if you serusly intend to play. (You'll even get to play ne in this one, the last a I'll enter for a few years.)
 - 3. I've heard several rumors saying that Jerry Jones will not over Diplomacy World, because claser find Hinton is the "rightful That's bull, folks. Jerry will take over DW, retaining the pre-ubscription costs, but these may go up very soon. Jerry will be his wife Pat do more of the work on his zine Lies Deceit & .ef-Schemes, and will be farming out some of the orphan games that he has courageously taken on, several of them to me. If anybody has any orphans that Jerry has not taken on, you can write me and I can help out. These games will be run to a quick conclusion in SMLABR, published by yours truly.

- check full of stuff that you all love to see. All article issues have been done in the history of the hobby, all moves issues have been done, even all-press issues have been done; what about all linear separator issues? No, hot me. Sorry. The deadline for the games printed in the last issue still stands, of course. It is: January 25th. 1979. Let's hope that everybody can get their orders in. If not, see below.
- of you brave sould may be needed. However, there is another, more pressing, necessity: I'll probably need as many of you guys as I can get for stand-by duty in SHABR, the zine I spoke of above, in connection with orphans. Subscriptions to SMLABR are only 10 issues for $2, and less (10 issues for only 11.70:1) if you standby in the zine. Note that 17¢ per issue is virtually postage only. However, you won't be buying what you get in EGGNOG, I'll warn you of that right now. SHABR is strictly game reports and a very little bit of chat, nothing else; and the size will be kept down to as little as possible, bot the ten pages you get in here. If the size does go up to 10 pages/issue, then the price will go up, too:
- of those people will subscribe (I'm apessimist; on the other hand, one third might be good!), we'll get 12 people added on to the sub list of that has already grown to almost 70. Plus I'll need a copy or two for myself and a few for inquiries from people I didn't hit... Just for interests sake, last issue's print run was over 100, throwing over a ream of paper to the winds. (And paper is exorbitantly expensive here, too...)
- 7. The Standby list (as of January 2nd, the day of this typing) is comprised of Job Sergeant, Vincent Lieu, Oren Phipps, Jerard Van Alkemade, Conrad Struckman, Russ Tulp, Ray Cifani, Phil Booper, David Joy, Phil Barding, Pob Acheson, John Lipscomb, Mitch Bailes, Larry Louden, and Tony Watson. This is how things look before issue #20, last issue (makes sense, right?), when any possible moves missed will rotate some of these people from front to back. How about some of you folks standing by in WWABR, of #5, above?
- 6. Advance warning: I will probably (95% chance) be in Europe for most of this coming summer, so, as you may well have already guessed, there will be no EGGNOG for about 2 months, give or take a week. This doesn't hart the subscribers, as their subs will simply continue after I get back, or the players, since my youngest brother Uli (remember him?) will be printing up the game results for the EGGNOG games on a monthly schedule in a warehousezine called STRANGE EREW which doesn't cost you folks a plugged nickle, but the traders may think that I am gypping them. Not so. Think of all of the extra issues that you have gotten from me in the past 1/2 year, or count howmany more issues I've distributed than you have in the same period of time. If that doesn't work, try to think about the fact that I don't need to have any trades at all, because in my capacity as Archivest I read all of the hobby's zines, anyways. There. As for my games in progress: Uli will most likely handle those, too, but with my running what he does by proxy, so to speak. That is, I'll tell (Contined on Page 10)

((First I'll hit you with the rules, then some comments sent along with the rules, and finally some of his personal comments in a letter accompanying the above two things. Fred himself has photocopied the maps for us, but they are legal size -- not legal size, but office size, so that explains the fact that they don't fit to my 32"x11" paper.))

This variant introduces the concept of certain sea areas being part of two spaces. This makes the Fleets still more flexible in their caneuver-ing abilities, and opens the board to new possibilities.

Rationals: On land, an Army can build a line across the width of the province. At sea, in 1914, a fleet could not control an entire body of water. Only in narrow spaces, such as the Straits of Dover, could a fleet really form a line. In the North Sea, for example, both Battle Fleets "occupied" this space at the same time on several occasions. Only once did they meet, off the coast of Jutland. This variant makes an effort to create this in seven areas of the board.

1. The Standard Diplomacy Rule Book applies, except as noted elev. 2. There are 37 Supply Centers. The Victory Criterion is 19. The added Supply Centers are: Ireland, Middle Last, and Morocco. (See Map.)

3. All units start out in the same positions as in the Regular game, except Turkey has F Constantinople and A Sinope (there is no province Ankara); and Austria has F Zara [southern half of province Trieste).

h. Dutil Spaces. Detween certain sea spaces, there are other spaces, indicated by cross hatches, which belong to both spaces. Arrows on map show to which two spaces these cross hatched areas are attacked. These are:

a. Retween North Sea and Relgoland Dight.
b. Letween Rebrides Sea and Norwegian Sea.

c. Wetween Mid-Atlantic Ocean and South Atlantic Ocean.

d. Letween Ionian Sea and Southern Mediterranean.

e. Letween East Black Sea & West Black Sea. f. Letween Western Med. and Tyrrhenian Sea.

2. Letween the new Southern Med. and Suez spaces.

5. High Ocean Movement Rules:

a. High Ocean is added to the eastern and southern edges of the board, representing a connection between the Atlantic and Mediterranean, via the Cape of Good Hope and the Suez Canal. High Ocean touches North, Mid, and South Atlantic Oceans, Southern Med. and Suez. Any number of F's or A/F's can occupy ligh Ocean simultaneously, and no units can be kept from entering. ((The Davis Army/Fleet module is increperated by reference, of course. This same module governs fleet movement in most of his variants, including Swiss Variant II, played here in EGGMOG.))

b. A fleet within High Ocean can support another Fleet inside that space to move to a normal space. A Fleet in a normal space can support another F in High Ocean into another normal space. Lowever, a F inside High Ocean cannot support a F from one normal space to another outside of high Ccean.

6. Cther Significant Man Changes:

a. Finland is made a two-coasted province. This eliminated the nove Nosway-St Petersburg. (Therefore, it was unnecessary to create an Archangel space, which has been a "trademark" in most Davis variants.)

b. Trieste is divided into droatia, a minor province, and dara, a Supply Center.

half of North Africa. The remainer of North Africa becomes the minor province, Al geria

e. Siwily is passable, and all units may move directly between Naples and Sicily. This does not affect the passage of F's or A/F's betueen the Ionian and Tyrrhenian Seas.

7. Convoy by the Regular Diplomacy method is allowed only for the crossing of a single sea space. This convoy order will be call the Fast Furry, and will be abbreviated "FF", ...

8. Conveys exceeding one sea space will be performed by the Army/ Fleet system, as in Abstraction and Atlantica ((and "1885" and Swiss II and ...) ... (Players needing copies of the A/F convoy and cordat rules may obtain them from the authors Fred Davis, 1427 Clairidge Rd, raltimore, Ed. 21207; enclose en Jone.)

Retreats and Removals to assess as as a. Retreats will be made by Just's Right Hand Rule if a player fails to subsit a retreat order. Lornally this will occur only at the conclusion of a Spring move. After a Fall move, players should submit their Retreat orders with the Winter adjustments: and other players may make their builds contingent on the nature of the Retreat orders.

b. A player may not write an "Off-the-Loard" or "Disbanded" retreat erger. Any intreat order must be to an existing prominge, if available. A unit will be forced off the board only is the gamesmaster finds no other hove for it.

c. Removal of thits in a postal game will be made by the gamesmaster when a player fails to submit a removal order. There is no requirement that the Jamesmaster remove Fleet before Armies, or Avant units before ment that the camesmaster remove Fleet before Armies, or Avat units before lione units, where he finds that such a procedure would result in the gift of a Supply Center to another power. Lowever, a dislodged unit should always be removed first in an NMR situation.

10. The Coastal Crawl and Crawling Retreat are permitted for P's in the Spa-Por and Con-Bul(ec) areas. In addition, a F in Finland(sc) may exchange positions with a F in StP(nc) and vice versa.

Connents on Pust Space Diplomacy: Note that the use of overlapping or Dual Spaces grante much more mobility to Fleets, and does away with the ludicrous situations like a German Fleet sailing out of Kiel being unable to have any effect on any spaces except Denantk, Holland, and the North Sea. In effect, both Englan and Germany can now exercise their sea power in this critical area, whole, on the first move, the Home Centers of London, Edinburgh, and Kiel are still protected. Norway is no longer a sure build for England. This strengthens Germany, while the creation of an Irish S.J. gives a compensating additional strength to England.

Svery country is strengthened to some extent by the various map changes. The Irish S.C. strengthens England, and, to some extent, France. Morocco offers additional strength to both France and Italy. Middle East and the separation of the Mack Sea strengthen Russia and create all sorts of possibilities for both Turkey and Russia, sespectively. The creation of Croatia gives Austria a better defensive position.

At the same time, the High Ocean space eliminates the corner positions for England and Turkey, and to some extent, France. They must now be aware of the possibility of an attack from behind, like all other powers. From High Cogan, novements into other sea spaces threaten the following no. of (Continued on rate 5)

Supply Centers: North Atlantic - 1. Mid-Atlantic - 4, South Atlantic - 3, Southern Med - 1 (+ Sicily), Suez - 1 (+ Syria). Italy's chances of breaking out of the Med. are also increased. Not only can she get out by moving to Southern Med or Suez, but from Western Med she can move to either South ello cos or Mid-Atlantic.

There may be a feeling that Germany and Austria are still too weak. I do not wish to add any more Supply Centers to either power. However, I would entertain an analysis which concluded that one or both ought to have a double-center in Berlin or Vienna. (I would suggest that Germany and Austria start with only 3 units, but be able to build additional units for these doube spaces in Winter 1901.)

It should be further noted that the use of overlapping sea spaces could be applied to any variant, to add additional excitement to the game.

Fred's Letter: I've come up with a new concept, which I think may be original. ((Naturally, it is original, at least for being printed in a DipZine -- Michalski isn't going to beat me on this one:)) For obvious reasons, only a sea space can have overlapping areas of control. (You could use the idea in a Space variant, of course, and I suppose there could be fantasy variants where the concept could be employed, but not in a conservative variant of the type I design.)

This all started when I read a comment about how ridiculous it was to have a rule that the German High Seas Fleet could not steam past Helgoland on the first move. Then, I noticed that in the 1958 Calhamer Diplomacy map shown in the A-M Gamers Guide, Calhamer had only a North Sea space in that area, so England and Germany could square off from the beginning. The, the idea cameto me that it would be much better if both England and Germany could threaten several neutral provinces at the same time, while the home tenters of Lon, Edi, and Kie remained safe. So, the North Sea became the first area to have a dual space. From these other logical spots presented themselves ... The only other real innovation is the Algh Ocean, which was Martin Janta-P's great contribution to the world of variants... I'd noticed that Calhaner had used a 2 coaster Fin-land in his 1958 version to separate Nuy from Str. so I decided to do the It eliminated the Russian Buils Spacein Archangel.

((At this point, Fred asks me to do some playtesting of the variant; after I reported back to him, the variant remained essentially unchanged. Fred is always velcome to use the extent of the Launeister family for such purposes; and the fact that I get exclusive rights to this printing didn't hurt at all: The map will be enclosed on one page or another in this issue. For the record, there are no games of Dual Space Diplomacy being offered at this time. Sprry!))

CHEAP THRILLS

For sale, from the editor, are the following games, bought through Stratezy & Tactics (and thus unboxed), in excellant condition, counters I'll even throw in something to hold the counters in: Price per game is a paltry $3. or $2.50 per if you buy two or more. Games are:
South Africa (The Death of Jolonialism), The Siege of Constantinople, Veracruz (War between Mexico & U.S.A.), The October War (1973 You Kippur conflict between Israel & U.A.R.), and Raid: (Commando Operations). All, as I said above, are unpackaged but in excellant condition.

The following issues of Startegy & Tactics are also for sale, in ((Some openings are good. Others are miserable. This is the fourth in a series of sevent articles that I have written on which openings work best for each country and they - but none of them will work unless the correct playing style is adopted and put to use with each of them. That of the ruthless, unsempulous desperade let loose in a postal Diplomacy game. In other words, if you don't like stabbing, then this opening is not for you.)

of the board, and yet this strongth is its ultimate weakness, since a Turk has troubles getting out of his rut and onto the offensive. This requires flawless testica, a dependable ally (few and far between here in Dippyland), and a charp, fast sciniar. For anyone that shies away from stabbing, Rurkey is not his country.

In 1901 you will form your plan for winning the game. Will you ally with Italy, Austria, or Aussia? Or a combination thereof?

Italy is out since the only possible target you could have would be Austria, and you'ld run into each other head on over Balkan soil. Best just form a temperary non-aggression pact with Italy. That way you always leave your options open.

Russia is out since there is no way to really control it once Austria is out of the may. The Russian will invariably stab you exactly one season before you were going to stab him, Even if he doesn't, he'll have a guard up, thus making it nigh impossible for you to stab him effectively. This means that you'll have to stay together until the end of the game (I know a girl that operates that way). All of which is fine, but your best bet with Russia is second place, since Russia has much more scope than does Turkey in such a situation.

Then Austria it is. With an Austrian ally you cansimultaneously attack Italy and Russia, one with armies, the other with fleets. This means that Turkey will have to split its forces into two grand wings -but this also makes it a lot easier to destroy Austria in the final stab of the came, for the win.

Tour Spring 1901 moves should be. A Constantinople-Eulgaria, F Ankara-Mack Sea, A Sayma-Armenia. Why?

A Con-Dul. This picks up Bulgaria, of course, plus gives you a startegic foothold in the Palkaris. You'll use this army in the Fall to move to Rumania, and in Spring 1902 to take a second Dalkan center. More than likely this unit will still be around when you stab Austria.

F Ank-Ela. The Elack Sea is extremely important to Turkey, and so should be taken immediately. In the Fall that fleet can support an army to Sevastopol or Rumania. It is of the utmost important that Russia be manipulated so that taking Dakk Sea and the coastal centers is as easy as possible. After 1901 a F illa will be invaluable for moving into (armies into) Russia speedily and snoothly.

A Smy-Arm. As I said above, Turkey must be aggressive, or it doesn't stand a chance to expand after 1901. (1975GW comes to mind.) With a strong Austrian ally, this army should be able to take Sev in the Fall, and more in 1902.

In summary: Turkey stands a good chance to expand, but only if it assumed the initiative in 1901. If it sits around for too long, it won't stand a chance. Only a very aggressive Turkey will be able to cut the mustard for very long, much less pull a victory off,

After Russia has been silenced and Italy is on the run, Turkey is free to stab Austria for the win, since it only needs to get to Mun or Mar for the win. Even if the stab backfires, a stalemate line is easily constructed in that area of the board, so a draw should easily be obtained.

(Note that if you stab Austria too early, you might be in for a longer fight than you first imagined, especially if Austria is able to make allies out of Italy and/or Russia before they are out of the game. That's a lesson in timing.)

Next time we get Italy's not-too-surprising-for me opening!

FREICH FLEET DIRECTED INLAID?

A Letter from Dave White: I decided to throw my two cents worth in about your approach to France. /Onigod -- Reader participation?!/
First, you say that France should be aggressive early, then you tell us that we should nove Fire-kid: Good grief! In my opinion, which is worth what you're paying for it, Fire-ric or -Eng leaves more options open.

Consider an anti-German philosophy. Fire-Fic makes it even easier to take led as you can either try to walk in unassisted or with support, one way or the other. If Germany moves a Mun-Ruh, a lur can either move to hel. Support Fric-led, hove to kuh, or try to cut support or (hopefully) get in there [Ruhr?], or finally, take a shot at Mun. [It seems that most of the time, Germany will cover up Mun in such cases, so an attack at either Ruh or led (or both!) would be more successful. If a Mun-lur, on the first move, you've virtually assured yourself of jetting hel. While Fire-Fic isn't placed as well as Fire-Mid, assumedly to handle an English stab, it isn't bad. Of course, Mid would then he wide open, and if the English took that, they would be assured at least one Iberian center.

To me, spa and For are French cherries that can be picked up at your leisure. Certainly, they are important, and you can't be too leisurely about picking them up, but the first move /I assume that "year" is what Dave meant is too important to leave such a trivial duty to. Getting one center in Iteria should be enough to work with at the start.

One more point about A Par-Bur. An Italian move of A Ven-Pie need not necessarily stop you from getting one of the Iberian centers -- move A Mar-Spa, A Jur-Mar if you can't FALLSALE negotiate with Italy.

If you taste runs more toward anti-English, F Bre-Eng is a good idea. Last you'd better not be attacking Germany at the same time, unless special circumstances warrant such! reing in in in; will afford you all the same advantages as Piu, with the additional advantages of being able to try for Long Land at Mal, or convey an army to the island, plus, it gives you a toehold to get to Nth. Once that happens, England is as good as gone. [Getting to Wth is very hard without German (or Russian) support, which will not be available before 1902 at the earliest. you won't be able to wonyoy an army onto England Trinich usually signals England's downfail) until 1902, if you have A iur & A Mar. In this case. you'd better be allied strongly with Germany, or it won't work. And never let down your guard - numerous are the times that Germany has stabbed an exposed France. It became the

The same is brue here for Franco-Russian relations. Get in good with Russia and kesp England manageable. After Angland is gone, you and Russia can feast on Germany. England is difficult to divide as spoils, though, so you should see to it that it is occupied by only one country's units -- this might necessitate a trade of centers later on. [This is sort of what I had recommended in my article. Keep Russia on your side. as you two will have to eventually duvide up Germany and England. However, Dave wants to eliminate England before Germany. The reason I don't go for this is because Gerrany can not be expected to just sit there while England is being put away, waiting to be eliminated. On the other hand, France is not strong enough to fight both England and Sumany at the same time.

and neither is Russian (who usually has Balkan committments).

You see, Konrad, you mistakenly assumed that everyone plays plan Dippy as intently and tactically as you and I. Sure, France would be much better off allying with singland and zapping Germany first, England and Italy second and third. But, what happens when you have an idiot playing England who doesn't write or that you're not sure you can depend on? My answer is to eat his processes before he gets in the way or messes up your grand startery, especially if Germany appears more traditionshy. Fifst of all, I'm never sure that I can depend on anybody when I play: Second, in my articles I'm assuming that all of your opponents will be more-or-less of the same caliber. If one or the other is a freak and thus blows your game plan, you can do nothing else but change your plan. You might be surprised to know how hany times one can change his game plan in one game! The more thing. By moving F Bre-Mid, you're laible to get 3 builds if everything coes right. Too many times I have seen France and Germany acquire too much territory too fast too early and end up hitting the bricks too soon because everyone else was too paranoid: rersonally, I think 2 builds in '01 is enough to get a good start, but not so much that it will impede your progress, as if you build 3. Las has been said so many times before, diplomacy is the name of the game. If you put it to good use, you can usually get o centers in 1901. At that point, you'll normally be able to hold them, through the same use of good diplomacy. (I've never had any problem helding onto a 6 center country after 1901.) However, if you want to set up the position on the board, think thusly: You have A bur and a Mar. Wost likely, Germany has a Ruh and A Kie. Germany will go for Hol and will usually cover up Mun. If you use A Dur-Del, then the position is: Germany has A Mun & A Hol, and you have A Del. Since Germany can't hit wel with support in the spring, and by the time he can you will have support from an army just moved up to the front, you can hold rel. Voila: Thanks for the letter, Dave. Isn't officiating at Mini-Golf Tourness dull, though?

Commentary: In the past few years Uli's tactics in this game had been unusually good (he is not really a very good tactical player, most of the time). However, in 1907 he finally had to accept the fact that he wouldn't be the winner in this game -- the pressure from a combined Russo-Italian attack was just too much. In Germany this cost him Munich: in England, Liverpool: and in France, an Italian penetration. However, even this seemingly helpless situation was not get the end, as shown in the Fall. also, note how France could block an Italian offensive (aimed at surrounding Faris) and still take back Marseilles! Tim (Itally) is a better tactician than Uli, but he still only picked up Spain in exchange for the good army position that he lost vis fur & Mar. Commentary: Uli once again, to the surprise of everyone, submitted a superb set of moved. One almost was wondering whether or not he knew what was coming for him: He guessed correctly over almost everything, and has moves in Germany were the only ones that could have saved his almost hopeless situation. As it stood now, he still wasn't in the best shape on any ofhis three fronts (i/France, 2/Germany, 3/ingland-Sacndinavia), but he had pulled through without the loss of any units. In fact, he had even gotten Italy to stab Kussia again: What France now had to do was to regroup and get organized for the time when Italy would come back to France for the win. Italy, on the other hand, was in prime condition, except for the tactical mastake of allowing kussia to retreat to Galicia, and thus presenting it with two open supply centers. However, the threats to Warsaw and Sevastopol had to take first priority in Russia's mind. From here on out, Russia and France had to copperate with each other, but (Continued on Page 10) found it hard to do so, knowing each other so well. However, something had to give, and Russia was seen to lose several units in the north, at the Italians kept coming. Final summary: Italy in excellant shape, and about to win the game. (Although he didn't know that it would take so long totake the last 4 centers.) France in relatively good shape, considering that he had just brought his country out of. (He'd have further problems in this game -- it was not all roses from the moment Italy stabbed Russia! Remember that Italy had already made up with Russia after a stab on several occasions.) Russia in poor shape. (I simply didn't have enough units to defend all of my open southern centers, and the fleets were no help. Turkey was dead. Who will be the next to die? him exactly who my allies are and who gets crunched, and I'll have it on paper, so that he doesn't forget. I'll fill you in on the details when the time gets closer. (The reason that I don't let him do an EGGNOG by himself is that I'm a diplomacy player, and so is her do you think that I'm stupid enough to trust him in a position of authority?! As it is, he'll be running the games. I'll probably leave him with a complete EGGNOG typed up, with just the games missing. We'll see. Till next time.
