

JASTRZAB

STATESMEN, LEND US YOUR EARS! FOR THIS DATE, MARKING THE SECOND ANNIVERSARY OF OUR EFFORTS, SHALL BE MARKED IN HISTORY FOREVER. FOR TWO YEARS WE HAVE LABOURED TO PRESENT THE HIGH POLE'S BABBLINGS AND TYPOS COUPLED WITH OTHER'S FEEBLE ATTEMPTS AT WORLD DOMINATION. OF LATE, THE AREA HAS BEEN LITTERED NOT WITH THE DOUBLE DEALINGS AND TREACHERY AND STABS THAT YOU HAVE ALL COME TO KNOW AND LOVE AND EXPECT FROM THOSE LIVING IN THE YOUNGSTOWN AREA...THE HOME OF HOWARD STUMP, JOHNIRON SMYTHE, JOHN KONING, AND YOUR HUMBLE NARRATOR..., BUT MARKED WITH THE RUMBLINGS AND GRUMBLINGS OF OTHER GAMES CALLED SPACE CENTURIONS AND MIDGARD. IS DIPLOMACY DEAD HERE? NEVER! THE WARS CONTINUE BUT WITH NEW SENARIOS AND FAR MORE WICKED IMPLICATIONS. HOWEVER, UNDAUNTED, THE JASTRZAB SURVIVES. FEAR NOT. YOUR GAME FEES ($5.00) AND YOUR SUBSCRIPTIONS (10/ $1.50) REMAIN ENFORCED AND ENTRENCHED FOR AS LONG AS THE WARS CONTINUE. LOOKING BACK TO THE EARLY BEGINNINGS WITH THE ATROCIOUS REPRODUCTIONS, THE EVEN MORE ATROCIOUS JOKES AND OUTRAGEOUS PRESS, WE PAUSE A MOMENT AND REFLECT, SMIRK A BIT, AND GO FORTH TO HIT THE NEW YEAR DETERMINED THAT EVEN THOUGH NOT THE BEST, JASTRZAB WILL CERTAINLY BE AMONG THE MOST NOTEWORTHY. FOR WHAT REASON WE ARE STILL PONDERING. ANYHOW, HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO US.

* * * * *

THE ABOVE STATEMENT WAS PREPARED LONG BEFORE THANKSGIVING (Gobble, Gobble) AND AS IT STILL APPLIES FOR THE MOST PART, WE DECIDED TO USE IT ANYHOW. IT IS NOW ALMOST CHRISTMAS TIME WHEN THIS IS GOING TO PRIN^T FINALLY. AN EXPLANATION TO YOU ALL IS PERHAPS DUE FOR THIS UNPRECEDENTED LAG IN PUBLISHING. AS YOU WILL NOTICE, MOST OF THE GAMES INCLUDED WITHIN HAVE AT LEAST TWO SEASON'S OF ORDERS WITH THEM. WE HAD TYPED OUT AT LEAST HALF OF THEM ONTO STENCILS BEFORE, ACTUALLY SOME TIME IN NOVEMBER. TO PUT IT MILDLY I DID NOT LIKE THE LOOKS OF WHAT WOULD HAVE COME OUT ONTO THE PRINTED PAGE AND DECIDED TO JUNK AT LEAST EIGHT PAGES OF STENCILS AND DO THE GAMES BY CARBON COPY INSTEAD OF PRESENTING A BOTCHED UP ISSUE. SOME CALL THAT DUMB. THIS ISSUE WILL PROBABLY BE SO BAD THAT SOME WILL WONDER WHAT WE DID OVER. ANYHOW, I THINK I LIKE THE WAY THIS ONE LOOKS ON STENCIL. A DIPLOMACY GAMEZINE EXISTS SOLELY FOR THE PRESENTATION OF ITS GAMES. ALL THE OTHER FEATURES ARE MERELY TRIMMINGS TO ADD TO THE SPICE OF THE THING. THEREFORE, DEAR HEARTS, THIS IS REALLY THE 24th ISSUE OF JASTRZAB. HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO ME, HOPE YOU HAD AN ENJOYABLE THANKSGIVING, WE SINCERELY WISH YOU A HAPPY AND ENJOYABLE CHRISTMAS AND A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR.

SOCIETY NEWS: *BIRSAN TO MARRY!

Perhaps the highlight of this year's society calendar was the recent announcement of the forthcoming marriage of Ms. Carol Tremblay to Mr. Edi. E. Birsan during the last days of December. Actually on the 31st for tax reasons we are assured by informed sources close to the happy couple. There is not an iota of truth, JASTRZAB reporters were told, that the wedding would take place at the Brooklyn Naval Yard in the middle of the night. It will be conducted during the day we are certain. The daughter of loving parents and a Grandmother who apparently recognizes the Birsan for what he really is, the lovely Ms. Tremblay is expected to place a restrainer on Edi's other activities. "I'll fix him good!" the bubbling Bride-to-Be exclaimed at the numerous warnings she received from well-wishers and fortune-tellers. Their grim tales have already effected a strange turnabout in the heart of Mr. Birsan---a job, a permanent address without hypothetical permutations, meekness of manner, and a refusal to put his games first are the already apparent changes that the fair maiden will wrought in the mind of the world's worst checker player. Time will tell what far more reaching effects a woman will have on the Fishkiller of New York. Our best wishes to the happy couple!

We are tempted to use this space to plug the many fine 'zines worth plugging. However, most of our readers are well-aware of what's what in Dippy circles and need no prodding from this corner. The two most notable exceptions are of course Rod Walker's return to the world of publishing in a smaller way and Walter Buchanan's departure from the main line HOOSIER ARCHIVES into the publication of DIPLOMACY WORLD next year. I would heartedly recommend you subscribe to DIPLOMACY WORLD (six issues for $5.00 and that's not a Polish joke). On the other hand I can recall Rod's wailings against Buddy Tretick and others when they folded up completely. Yet very few ever took Rod to task for his disappearance, friend or foe. I consider myself among the former EXCEPT for the old ZOTHIQUE game where I was playing Poland and the damable 1970Dcf Abstraction game which I somehow inherited. However, EREWHON is back in print! And Rod's busy making grapejelly---everyone remembers his appetite---so send him a recipe or something.

HONEST REVIEW---COSTAGUANA...Translated from the Italian meaning 'Family of Lizards'..... edited by Conrad Von Metzke, founder of the Decapitated Society of the US....dittoporno..better humor sections than JASTRZAB, editor especially....sub rates: 5/$1.00....highly literate, but without purpose....no game openings at the moment...magazine represents what the editor thinks he would like being rather than what he might actually be...ten games in progress at the moment...adequate press retorts...overall quality exceptional...punctuality adhered to....liberal excepting views towards Big Brother....at least eight fingers employed in typing....a blessing in disguise

OLDIES-BUT-GOODIES - #2

WALKER IN MONINGSBURG

IT was a warm June night, the 27th to be exact, when Dave Johnston and I pulled into Youngstown. I had warned Dave of the hazards when I picked him up in Columbus, but he insisted on coming. On buying the gas, even. I proved my warnings true by promptly getting lost twice on the freeways by missing turnoffs. But we finally made it.

WE quickly located Manse Koning, bordering as it does next to one of the world's largest graveyards. "Just the place," I observed, "for a Diplomacy Convention." Had I but known the terrors that lurked ahead, I would not have made the remark so offhandedly. Manse Koning was dark and forbidding, but we knew that was only outward show to discourage the local motorcycle gangs. So we parked in the drive and started up the steps to the door. By taking them two at a time, we managed the trip in only 15 minutes or so. The view was breathtaking. At our feet lay mile after mile of tombstones. I could just make out my car, parked between you, my husband, when I see cigar ashes.

SAMANTHA THAUMATURGE
1665--1743

She popped and crackled
when we burned her.

WE rang the bell. Mrs. Koning, John's mother, answered. She unbarred the door and undid the latch and undid the latch and undid the latch and undid the latch and replaced her Colt .45 in her shoulder holster. "The motorcycle gangs are out tonight," she said, "and Samantha is walking the grounds." We assured her that all had been quiet when we drove up. "John has gone to the airport to pick up Derek," she said.

I SHUDDERED. It was true. The dread Dirac A.G. Nelson, code-name "Derek", had arrived from Toronto, headquarters of the Sinister Canadian Conspiracy. After resting awhile, we left for the car and half an hour later brought up our bags, books, Diplomacy junk, briefcases, and of course my cat, Cat. He was consigned to the basement, where he wouldn't claw things and where the noise of motorcycles wouldn't bother him.

JOHN and Derek were due back from Cleveland at 9. John was more punctual than usual, and we heard the roller-skate wheels of his go-cart scrape into the driveway at 10:30. We soon learned that Dirac's plane had been early. Many people do not know that John Koning is in reality Bernie Kling, being under the false impression that his only alter ego was "Paul Harley". This statement will therefore be a surprise to some who do not know John very well. We were all introduced to Dirac Nelson, who proved a very affable chap. We were charmed by his disarming greeting, "Kill Yanks". Dave and I were having some ice tea, having found 20 or 30 pots of it in the kitchen. John got a case of beer from Dirac, and Dirac drank it. I think Mrs. Koning objected somewhat when he broke the tops off over the mantle instead of on the edge of the kitchen sink, but she good-naturedly did not mention it.

EVENTUALLY we decided to get some sleep, having spent several hours listening to Dirac's plans for massacring several million Yanks and Quebecois. He was very entertaining. And graphic. We were to sleep in the attic, where John normally hangs out and works on Dippy material. To be sure, in one corner there was a game board, all set up for a stab game. At least, that's what John said; it was hard to see the pieces through the cobwebs. In another corner was a stack of mail three or four feet high. Some pieces near the bottom seemed to be postmarked "1965", but they were too badly faded for me to be sure.

THERE were three beds. There was a very large one into which Dave plopped, going instantly to sleep. He didn't even say, "this is too soft". There was a smaller bed and an army cot. Above the snores, Dirac and I argued good-naturedly over the bed. After I broke two of Dirac's arms, he decided to take the cot.

EARLY in the morning, we were awakened by loud voices and raucous laughter. Surely, we thought, one of the cycle gangs were having an orgy in the back yard. As it turned out, however, the East Coast contingent had arrived, as well as the famous Charles Reinsel, whose heroic determination to "burn" John Boardman has made him the hero of a generation. From New Jersey and New York came several other, uh, individuals. We were introduced to Jeff Key, who was filling up a corner of the yard nearest the kitchen; to Loring Windblad, who had stopped talking long enough to set up a photo lab near the garage; and to Bud Stowe, who was already picking out likely victims. With Jeff had come his charming wife, Mary Ann, who kept laughing about "grown men and their toys", and her friend, Edi Birsan, who was telling everybody "when you get to New York, come up and see me some time". Charles Reinsel prove far more affable in person than he sometimes is in print, perhaps because he was wearing his summer mustache. Charles, with whom I have had a feud of a year's standing, immediately agreed to bury the hatchet. It was only later, during the game, I learned where.

WE decided to play a game of (surprise!) Diplomacy--the result of which have since been published in THE GRAND FENWICK GAZETTE --#2---and immediately everybody took to the bushes in twos and threes. It took us several minutes to get them all back so we could assign countries. Then we all agreed to dispose of Dirac who, being a foreigner, didn't speak the language very well, and then fell to on each other. I distinctly remember 1901 setting some sort of record for an in-person game, as soemwhat less than a quart of blood was shed from various knife cuts, gunshot wounds, and brass knucklesmarks about the groin and kidneys. But then, Youngstown is noted for its rather bloodless games. Charles began claiming victory in 1902. Dirac, down to one unit in 1904, upset the board with a flying leap, screaming, "I win, I win!" This claim was disputed by some, but then it was decided to go on to another game.

MANY games were played that day. Much food was consumed. Much beer was guzzled. Dirac Nelson, somewhat paranoid over the fact that everyone attacked him in every game, built a fortress out of empty cases which he had drained. The Rolling Rock factory was called for a special shipment. This came, although delayed by a motorcycle gang attack. The trucks did manage to form a circle and fought off the howling savages.

THE LAST game played, in the wee small hours of the morning, was a team-commander version of Blitzkrieg. I can hear the incisive conversation now:

NELSON: You can't do that. The rules say....

BIRSAN: Well, my rules say.....

WALKER: What are those little square cardboard things?

KONING: Have another beer, Dirac.

KEY: I suppose you're wondering why I called you here....

KONING: Have another beer, Dirac.

JOHNSTON:Excuse me, but those are my bombers you're attacking!

BIRSAN: That's right, I'm wiping them out.

KONING: Have another beer, Dirac.

WINDELAD:Hold it! (click)

KONING: I have to go the the cellar for another case of beer for Dirac. Excuse me.

WALKER: Why can't I move the pink things, too?

KEY: Because they're the enemy!

WALKER: Can I ally with them, then?

KONING: OY, OY HELP! I was attacked by a ferocious tiger in the cellar!

CAT: Rowrrr, Rowrrrrrrr, pffffff!

MRS. KONING: Who spilled blood on the rug? Whose blood is this?

NELSON: Kill Yanks.

MOTORCYCLE GANG LEADER: All reet, youse guys, dis is uh raid. Where's da beer?

SAMANTHA THAUMATURGE: Olllllooooooooooooooooooooo. Rattle, Rattle (chains)

KONING ON WALKER IN KONINGSBURG ---DIPCONII

1. This is not a cemetary beside my house; it is one of Youngstown's better residential sections. While it is often spoken of as being "quiet as a graveyard," it is in fact full of some of the most politically active residents in this town. Most of them vote in every election held here. Many, in fact, vote in 9 or 10 precincts each time. They are the backbone of the present administration's supporters.

2. Edi Birsan, who is certainly more attractive in person than in print, did give an invitation to any of us who happened to be in New York, but it was not exactly as Walker renders it. The actual text, however, is too embarrassing to be quoted here.

3. The Rolling Rock deliveries could hardly have been harrassed by motorcycle gangs, since Rolling Rock is delivered by motorcycle gangs. The ever-present sound of motorcycles in my neighborhood is merely evidence of the amount of beer consumed hereabouts.

4. Walker himself was no doubt forced to fantasize the weekend because he saw so little of it. He would careen through a room occasionally, waving a glass, cup, or mug full of some foul brew, and shout something like "Kill yanks!" or "I'll take my tea anyway I can get it!" or even "That's a pile of crap!" Naturally the rest of us, who are socially conservative, were dismayed at this, but we did our best to ignore it (except for Charles Reinsel who was so distracted that he threatened to purn Walker several times.) Nobody really got a chance to hold a conversation with Rod. Most of us doubted that it would be possible to do so.

WROBEL ON WALKER IN KONINGSBURG AND ON KONING ON WALKER IN KONINGSBURG...1973 UPDATE

For those of you who are relatively new to the hobby the preceding was presented to further and foster your understanding of how those big names you keep hearing about really came to power (or decline as the case many have come to). ROD WALKER continued on his path of animal trainer, culminating a highly profitable career with the capture of the original Chicago Balrog. Hroom, Hroooooom! Rumbles of this still appear from time to time gaily. CHARLES REINSEL today, having purned half of the continental United States (and parts of Europe), is the highly popular and successful editor of Big Brother the last Renaissance of true postal Diplomacy. EDI BIRSAN, Mary Ann Key's friend, was in Europe for a spell and, after her highly successful operation, returned as he whom we have all come to love and revere. MARY ANN KEY, for a time a highly successful author of cookbooks, has mellowed to motherhood and liberation. DIRAC NELSON, having disappeared for a spell in the Laural Mountains, reemerged for a spell as the popular hero of a series of folk writings. JOHN KONING has become even more conservative and isolationist---the piles of unopened letters continue to grow and now, with the advent of the telephone into that part of Youngstown, refuses to answer the telephone without foreknowledge of the caller. A true patriot. THE ROLLING ROCK BEER COMPANY has given way to higher means of inebriation. Time marches on. For those of you lost after the first three lines, tough.

After that serious dessert, it's time for a....you guessed! Pshaw.

Did you hear the one about the young Polish lass who finding out she was going to have a menstrual cycle made arrangements to trade it for a Honda?
You say that's bad....you ain't heard nothing yet....why do people continue to send me these?

AND NOW DIRECT FROM THE HONEYMOON SUITE OF THE MORIA DUNGEONS COMES ANOTHER CHAPTER OF

THE SENUOUS HOBBIT Part the Fourth or Fifth

(EDITORS NOTE: The digression of the original authors from tracts of material on pure Hobbit relations to the more pervers behaviors influencing hobbit outlooks is continued in this chapter dealing with further details of Elf-Hobbit perversions))

"When the Hobbits first experienced the abuse by Elves, they were distraught with a method of replying in kindly contempt. Finally after much deliberation upon the need for a just response to the rape of hobbits by the elves, the Hobbit elders decided to take vengeance in kind. So it was that in the First Age, the Age of Violation in Hobbit Lore, ten of the strongest and wisest hobbits were dispatched on a secret mission to Lorien Wood. There they cast a net about the form of the Princess of the Wood and they danced the ritual of Vengeance upon her soft skin:

"Drink this the wine of pleasure and cast not fears,

Swoon to the wands about thine stars

Welcome the bonds we offer with open heart, mind, and ears,

Take this thought to sing in Wedding bars:

Walk upon a Hobbit in full mate dear Elf

And thee best no forget thine self

For E ch and every Elf has a princess

And her the Hobbits dance will carress

Unless he leaves the Hobbits without distress"

PUBLISHER'S NOTE:

THIS WAS APPARENTLY
CHANTED TO THE TUNE OF 'ANCHORS AWEIGH'
FROM OTHER DOCUMENTS

EXAMINED.

So saying, the Hobbits furry feet are prodded and nodded into all forms of enclosures upon her soft form. Gently not forcing or retreating the little Hobbits perform a dance and a feat as the Elf Princess can only cringe in joy. As the dance beats faster and again the princess can surge on and again, till she reaches a pleasure just shy of the great threshold and there the dance becomes aggressively boddy. For the music does stop just as she cast her thoughts upon the paradise of emotion just one furry step distant. As the Princess recovers her now listless body she sees the Hobbit fleeting feet leaving her sides quickly for the long march to Hobbitown. Powerless to call them back to finish their dance, the Princesses of past rituals have become forest nymphs in search of that paradise they once had a glimpse of through the workings of hobbit feet."

TRAVELS WITH BOND

or, The Perils of Paul E.

IV. The Terrible Ballhog

King Bond, King Eric the Just, and Captain Rodney C. Walker USAF had left Isen and were in the Gap of Rohan. They had met few people the past few weeks and were looking for some excitement.

"We could go to Fangorn Wood and watch the Ent races," said King Eric.

"No", said King Bond, "It would take at least three months, and by then they would be at least half-way through.

"Why don't we dry Moria? They always have a good fireworks show this time of year," suggested King Bond.

"Didn't you hear," commented Walker. "When BirSauron's troops passed through over a year ago, they make an anti-fireworks ordinance."

"That BirSauron will go too far one of these days. I'd like to get my hands on him," growled King Eric.

King Bond smiled. "You'll have to wait your turn. I understand the Anti-Emi BirSauron Society is after him at the moment. Meanwhile, what shall we do?"

Walker spoke up. "I'll ask that person over there," and he walked off.

Now Kings Bond and Eric the Just noticed the newcomer for the first time.

"He sure is big," commented King Eric.

"Yeah."

"Could it be Conrad the Tall?"

"No. He never leaves the A-EBS Headquarters."

"Let's wait and see."

"Good thinking."

Now Walker approached the large newcomer. "Good day, sir. I hope you are doing well."

The newcomer stared at him and said, "Hrooomie!"

"Ah, yes," said Walker. "I was wondering whether you could inform us as to the whereabouts of any entertainment facilities."

The newcomer stared at him and said, "Hrooomie, hrooomie!"

"Rod!" hissed King Eric the Just. "It's the Ballhog! I'd know that 'Hrooomie' anywhere!"

"Quick, over here," whispered King Bond. "Maybe he'll go away."

The Ballhog looked at the three. "NO RUN, MUST FIGHT."

"Let's rush him," said King Eric.

"No, WAIT, Eric," said King Bond. "Although I'm sure we are all more than a match for a half-witted Hobbit, I fear the Ballhog is even stronger than we. We must use psychological warfare."

"I got us into this mess, so I'll go first," said Walker bravely. He stepped up to the Ballhog and said, "You are a three-toed, tree-climbing sloth!"

"The Ballhog smiled and countered with "Karl Marx."

Walker's face grew a little red. "You are a retrograde ape!"

"Lenin and Trotsky."

"Your mother ate bananas, and your father lived in a zoo!"

"Josof Stalin."

Walker's face was a bright red now, and rapidly growing darker. "You're uglier than a breadfruit!!!!"

"Ho Chi Minh."

"You stink!!!!"

"John Boardman."

"You...you...you...." Walker's face was a bright purple.

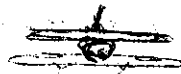

"He going to explode," cried King Eric.

The Ballhog laughed and spoke once more. "Buddy Tretick."

Walker shrieked in agony, ran over, and began beating his head against a tree.

THE LIGHT BLUE SOPWITH OVER TYROLIA

Pierre was flying at an altitude of 19,500 feet. This was the ceiling for his Camel F1 since he was overloaded with the inert weight of the Polish underground hero, alias Stanley Rumble as newspaper reporter. Speed was down to 101mph but visibility was excellent.
Flying above the low clouds, Pierre felt very secure from enemy aircraft. He had his 2 ff Vickers loaded and ready for action should any appear. He was now relaxing since his trip was half over---he had calculated that they should be over the old Tyrolia-German border.

Suddenly, from behind the sun and at a much higher altitude, a black plane was diving towards Pierre and his cargo. Pierre Nylon didn't see the plane until it was less than a mile away. He almost panicked when he saw the plane and knew he had only a few minutes to do something. It looked like a German plane, perhaps a Fokker D-VII. If so, he was in trouble since his plane was overloaded with weight. He would be clumsy and slow, while the enemy would be in their best plane! But who could it be? Germany was knocked out of the war long ago and all planes from their airforce were already taken for French use!

Pierre stopped thinking about it as he had little time to react to the attack. He thought and decided upon a suicidal dive.
With the added weight he could easily outdive the Black Fokker, but would the wings take the stress? Hearing maching gun rattle upon his plane, he started the dive for below the clouds. The engine reared with power, the air creamed by the plane, the wings hummed under stress and Pierre felt himself almost being pulled out of the cockpit. Faster and faster he dived. He was praying that the plane would not break up. The clouds below him seemed as if they were racing at him and his plane.
Quite suddenly, Pierre found himself in the clouds and then right out of it below them.
The green-brown earth appeared another 15,000 feet below. He leveled off the pland and took a look behind him.

"Whaaaaat!?! That Can't be!" Pierre yelled for right behind him was the Black Fokker only a few hundred feet behind him and guns blazing away at his Camel. "I'm Doomed!" Ace Pierre yelled, but he couldn't hear himself.
Who was the Black Fokker? How did the Fokker dive as fast as Pierre's Sopwith? Why was the Fokker after him? Will Pierre and the inert body of Rumble make it alive or will theybe shot full of holes? Stay tuned!

THE RUSSIAN CAPITAL: I vote no on the proposed order of finish ((ED: A Petition to concede the game to France)). I strongly feel that this game should be declared null and void. Fred Davis has allowed his friendship and/or association and/or 'infatuation' with Boyer to completely influence his play of this game. Davis has not played as an independent free thinker determined to win. He has played to allow Boyer to win without regard to any other factors. His default at playing a fair and "as it should be played" game has prejudiced the other players--Italy, Austria, and Russia in particular. Hence this game should not be allowed to continue and should be voided. Further I strongly recommend that Fred Davis be barred from Diplomacy play as his method of play in this game rules him out as a competitive player. I have verer seen a player in a Diplomacy game play with such utter abandon for his position and those of the other players. I at first thought he was the most gullible player in the world. However, I can't quite believe that. Hence, my disgust at his performance here. He has wasted everyone's time and caused an unfair advantage to all save France. -----William Atteberry

GERMANY builds Army Berlin. Italy builds Army Venice. Russia builds...oops inks the great fleet harboured in Edinburgh.

Conditional Spring 1908 orders on file for Germany and France.
General Orders on file for France.

As there is apparently no press to print for these last two seasons, the following:

AFTER the Spring 1907 moves were carboned out to the players, I had requested Mr. Burce to assume the command of France for this game. However, under JASTRZAB house rules and my own personal feelings, a player cannot be thrown out of a game if he at least has the courtesy to reply to my demands for intentions to play and general orders and the next seasons' moves. Mr. Prokopowicz replied that he fully intended to stick around and make a pest of himself. You missed my intent, Gerry, in calling for a replacement player and to point out exactly what can happen if nobody cares about playing in a game let me present the following example of the exact opposite.

BIG BROTHER GAME #15 (I can't find the Boardman Number)

In Spring 1903, the French and Turkish players resigned; their reasons are not germane to this discussion. In Fall 1903, the Russian player was discarded for missing his third move in this game. In Spring 1904, the German player missed his third move and was put out of the game. In Fall 1905, the Italian player was removed for missing his third set of orders. All units going into Civil Disorder in the above situations. The game had long lost the aspect of Diplomacy. Diplomacy of any gender! It should be noted in all fairness that deadlines were set two weeks apart and strictly adhered to. However, if one likes Diplomacy, operation under House Rules of this sort prohibits and inhibits one from "messing around" as our Mr. Prokopowicz would like above. Which is better, allowing a player to do as he will as he paid his money and should be able to do what he wants with his country or even though he has paid his money, he can be removed if he does not play the way the GM thinks the game should play regardless of others in the game or push the total game as interaction between all countries still alive? I dislike either of the first two even though I won BIG BROTHER #15 as England. DIPLOMACY should not come to a one-on-one tactical game ever. P.S. Despite the advantages, I almost didn't win!!!!

GERMANY builds Army Munich and Army Berlin. RUSSIA builds Army Moscow.

VOTE TABULATION shows that the majority of players are in favor of a concession to Germany...3 voting for, none against, two abstentions. Therefore Germany is declared the winner by concession with the following order of finish (for those who rate that way): 1. Germany, 2. Turkey, 3. France, 4. Russia, 5. Italy. Actually there were four in favor when the season started, but good old Conrad felt that his vote didn't count anyhow. My congratulations to Tom Eller on another victory (how many is that now?). Final Tally plus any player comments will appear next issue. Tom, you're getting to be another Edi...Tsk!

THE COOKIE CRISIS

Christmas Cookie Crunch approaching

SPECIAL REPORT: THE MAKING OF THE CHRISTMAS COOKIE,1973 Time is munning out! Only 10 more baking days to Christmas. Children fear cookie rationing! Horne's December 14: Supplies still plentiful ov vital cookie sheets, curcuial cookie cutters, cookie jars, rolling pins, essential aprons, sifters, canisters, crocks, cookie decorating kits, but...

TIME IS SHORTENING. A Nation that runs on cookies can't afford to run short. Christmas isn't Christmas without cookies in the cupboard.

FIFTY FOUR COOKIES OR FIGHT! Give me liberty or give me cookies. Make cookies, not war. Friends, we must all bake together or most assuredly we shall all bake separately.

COOKIES COUNT! Remember Pearl's cookies? The Boston Cookie Party, the French and Indian Cookie, The Bake-off of Bunker Hill, Sherman's march to the cookie jar?

COOKIES are a basic family institution. You never outgrow your need for cookies. The family that eass cookies together reads bookies together. Where would we be without the Maltese Cookie? The Cookie of Monte Cristo. Portnoy's Cookie. The Andromeda Cookie. The Old Man and the Cookie. Antony and Cookiepatra. The Cake also Rises.

EVERYONE IS TALKING ABOUT COOKIES. Last Cookie in Paris. Five Easy Cookies. The Cookie Connection. Fritz the Cookie. Planet of the Cookies. Night of the Living Cookies. I am Curious (Cookie). A Cookywork Orange. The Godcookie. Man of LaMunchies.

MOTHERS OF THE MUNCHERS, now is the time for all-out kitchen mobilization before it's too late. Calling all cookie utensils, report to Horne's. If you only have one hour to give for your cookies, the buy some at the Christmas Cookie Capital of the Free World, HORNES!

Underscored moves do not succeed. No retreats necessary. Talking with Tony Dastoli on the phone reminded me of the FTF game here awhile back with John Smythe playing Austria, Edi Brisan as England, and me as Turkey. That game featured a continuing struggle between John and myself but a combined effort against Mr. Brisan. It is obvious that England can hold out with 6 units forever giving the Italian-Austrian alliance 8 centres in the middle to divide between them. Hummmmm... I can't recall why Edi resigned from the FTF game then nor can I see the English giving up here either. We shall see the Fall!
