

JASTRZAB 7

...Preparing for CHICAGO!!!!

JASTRZAB, Youngstown's leading Diplomacy magazine, is published every three weeks (approximately) by Stan Wrobel, Youngstown's leading gamesmaster (read: novice) with the occasional vital assistance of John Koning, Youngstown's contribution to the Encyclopedia Brittanica, and John Smythe, Youngstown's only world ruler. Also indicted for being guilty of aiding and abetting are the Muckers and other miscellanii. This magazine is glued together at Seven Poland Village Blvd., Poland, Ohio 44514. Phone 216-7574440 after 9:30 evenings (EST). Subscription rates continue at 10/$1.50. Game fees are $4.00

GAMES: This issue contains: 1969CJ--SPRING 1907, 1972AK--SPRING 1902, 1972BQ--SPRING 1901, 1972Dcx after Tuile, 1969B (TV-B)--WINTER 1909, 1969BV (TV-E)--WINTER 1905, and 1969P (TV-C)--SUMMATION.

GAME OPENINGS: JASTRZAB GAME THREE has four registered so far. To register into a game, submit a country preference in descending order only. Game fees will be called for with Spring 1901 orders after a game has filled. House Rules are available upon request.

THE INTERNATIONAL GAME SHOW, CHICAGO, JULY 22 and 23. As the cover might indicate Youngstown is dispatching its finest (read: bloodthirstiest) to this event. For further information, contact Len Lakofka, 4870 N. Marine Dr., Apt. 525, Chicago, Ill 60640.

WARCON III---The annual convention of the Southwest Regional Association of Wargamers will be held JULY 8 and 9 at the Memorial Student Center of Texas A&M University. FURTHER INFORMATION can be had by writing Michael R. Childers, P.O. BOX 1201, COLLEGE STATION, TEXAS 77840. John Koning and Yours truly were in attendance at WARCON II held last year in Oklahoma City. (THEY EVEN LET ME WIN A TROPHY) Recommended.

For the sharp-eyed reader who will notice that three games appear here that did not appear before, the following explanation: Mucker Press has also almost concurrently published three/fourths of the games of THE VOICE up to now along with JASTRZAB. We have decided to consolidate our publishing efforts for two diverse reasons. One being money, and the second being the method of organization used by Mucker Press (read: muddled). Therefore, a poll of THE VOICE players was taken and resulted in their allowing the transfer (in two cases) and no response in the case of 1969P (TV-C) players. All those who traded for THE VOICE with Jeff Key are advised to contact him personally in regards to the continuance of said trades. The immediate results are apparent, at least from my standpoint. I applaud all editors and publishers who are able to put forth a multi-zine effort. Mucker Press would rather publish a perhaps larger edition than two separate ones. This means I can throw all moves received into one large envelope instead of the two I have been using. So much for reorganization.

Novices (and some experienced) players: Please read the paragraphs devoted to THE JUST RIGHT-HAND RULE on pages three and four. JASTRZAB House Rules do not use this rule, so do not panic. I will not go into the problems I have in the adjudications of these different games... suffice to say that 1969CJ uses the House Rules of the LIMBOURG GAZETTE, 1972Dcx uses BARADUIN I RULES plus JASTRZAB, 1972AK and 1972BQ use JASTRZAB HR, and 1969Band 1969BV use THE VOICE House Rules, 1969 edition. Aaaaaaaagh!

COMING UP: An article on how to get a high rating in Rating Systems and an article on the use of Astrology to determine the trustworthiness of allies. (Who says Carol Buchanan has all the good stuff....!)

PRESS RELEASES....

Warsaw: Taar Tsingletree was heard to express his opinion of the Turkos-Russian alliance at a recent party hosting the German and Italina embassies. He said, "You fellas can advise your bosses to stop twisting my knickers, 'cause I'm loyal to the Pod of the Orient. Just consider what might have happened to me if Turkey was my enemy! We count our slightest blessings."

Jasny Gorki: "One...Two." ...and so, as the sun slips lower o'er the hills of Tennessee, a small smirk of irony passes through the mouths of all Warsaw residents (and all Jastrzabs who appreciate the finer points of Polish-Russian relations) as it comes to pass that the Russians have come to die in the cradle of Poland.

Munich: The "Italino Lake" is really the "English Extension". Possession is 9/10 of the Law!

Kiel: False charges of aggression on the part of the Fatherland have prompted the Kaiser to ask for Venice as a piece ((DAMN...PEACE...Sorry, Lee)) settlement. This is our last Territorial demand ((He said Hungarliy!))

As many readers of JASTRZAB are "novices" in the strict interpretation of the word, we felt it might be appropriate to give some explanation for the above annihilations and some illumination to the two Rules which provided for these annihilations. Novices continually run across references to the MILLER RULE and THE JUST RIGHT-HAND RULE. A couple of illustrations and explanations may therefore cast some light on THESE rules and their interpretations.

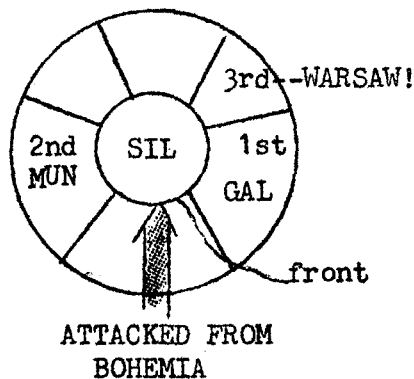

THE MILLER RULE: Under no circumstances may a dislodged unit give support.

Thus, the Russian attack on Berlin from Silesia fails and results in a stand-off as the support of the Russian Army Prussia is invalidated because it is dislodged by the German Army Berlin. Without the Miller Rule being used, note that the Russian Army Silesia to Berlin would succeed as the support of the Russian Army Prussia would not be invalidated or cut by the attack coming from Berlin. Thus the grim tale that unfolds below would not have happened and the Russian Army Silesia would succeed to Berlin, leaving Warsaw vacant for the retreat of the Russian Army Prussia.

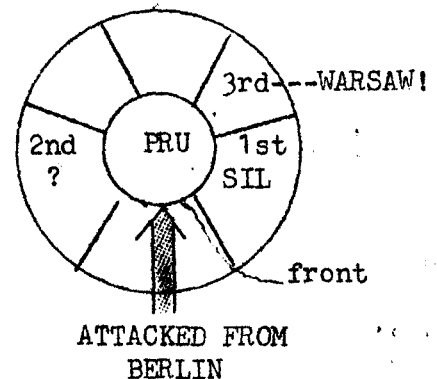

THE JUST RIGHT-HAND RULE: "If a retreat order is not sent for a dislodged unit, the gamesmaster will make the retreat in the following fashion. Consider that there is a front between the attacking unit's province and the dislodged unit's province, delineated by the map border between them. The dislodged unit is retreated to the province immediately to the right of the front. If this space is unavailable, then to the province immediately to the left. If this is unavailable, the next closest on the right, then the next closest on the left and so on until all the provinces bordering the dislodged unit have been exhausted. At this point, the unit is removed from play."

Illustration of what this rule's application to the area surrounding the Russian/German attacks provides this dual example:

Remembering that retreats are simultaneous, the application of the JRHR must be also considered simultaneously and goes thus:

- A. In 1, the Russian Army Silesia cannot retreat to Galicia, the first possibility as Galicia is occupied.
In 2, the Russian Army Prussia cannot retreat to Silesia, the first possibility as Silesia is occupied.
- B. In 1, The Russian Army Silesia cannot retreat to Munich, the second possibility as Munich is occupied.
In 2, the Russian Army Prussia cannot retreat to the Baltic Sea or to Livonia, one of which is the second possibility, the Baltic being a sea province and Livonia being occupied.
- C. In 1, the Russian A Silesia can retreat to Warsaw as the third possibility.
In 2, the Russian A Prussia can retreat to Warsaw as the third possibility.

Continuation of JRHR discussion...

Therefore, by the simple application of the Rule disallowing dual occupancy of a single space, both Russian armies are annihilated.

In the action surrounding Italian and Turkish units in and around Greece, an even more obscure interpretation is deemed necessary. The Italian Fleet Aegean was displaced and must retreat. Italian conditional retreats specified the space "Ionian Sea" as the direction of retreat if necessary. NOTE that the JRHR does not forbid retreats to be ordered conditional on moves; rather it encourages them. The Turkish fleet Greece was displaced and must retreat. No conditional retreats were provided for the direction of that retreat. In this specific case, only one was possible anyhow. Application of the JRHR eventually brings the Turkish Fleet Greece as being forced to retreat to the IONIAN SEA. Combining this necessary retreat with the Italian ordered retreat and adding the dual occupancy rule thus annihilates both units.

A search into John Koning's Archives produced this statement, which we are reprinting here for further illumination of this rule.

THE VOICE, VOLUME II, NO.2, JANUARY 3, 1969, JEFF KEY EDITOR AND PUBLISHER

"...The Right-hand Rule was not designed to eliminate or reduce a player's control over these units. Eric Just wrote in THE DIPLOMAT that there are only three ways to handle retreats: (1) have a separate retreat turn (which delays the game mercilessly), (2) allow players to make their moves conditional on retreats, or (3) to make their retreats conditional on moves."

We agree with him that players do much more moving than retreating and that the last method therefore makes more sense. The Right-hand Rule was designed with this in mind. When a player feels that he is in danger of being dislodged from a province while moving or standing, he should include a conditional retreat order with his orders. This retreat will be followed if it is at all possible. A player may also send in a multiple retreat order giving his preference should his first choice be blocked. It is only when all of a player's choices have been eliminated as impossible, or when a player fails to signify any preference, that the Right-hand Rule will ever come into use."

This paragraph illustrates perfectly the basis of the Just Right-hand Rule and the thinking that went into it. At the time it was used, there was no such rule as we have now enabling a unit to be removed if not retreated. While both sides of the coin have their advantages, I personally rather like it, although it is not a part of JASTRZAB House Rules. As a player I imagine I would dislike it.

CONCLUDING MEMO TO THE GERMAN AND THE ENGLISH COMMANDERS IN 1969CJ: AT THIS RATE OF ANNIHILATION, THE GAMESMASTER WILL HAVE ANNIHILATED MORE UNITS AND CONTRIBUTED TO THE DOWNFALL OF MORE NATIONS THAN THE COMBINED EFFECTS OF YOUR JOINT ATTACKS. FOR CONTINUATION OF THIS EFFORT, SEND FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS TO THE JASTRZAB HOME FOR OLD POLES.

This finally ends the space devoted to 1969CJ for this issue. Player's and reader's comments are invited as always....

SOMEWHERE IN RUSSIA: The new War Season finds our name player as the Crown Prince of Poland, Davidimir Tooyshbokov. Davidimir is the victim of the Russian Czar's need for wealth to support his power. The Czar Nicky took all of Davidimir's lands and vast country estates just outside of the west side of Poland proper on the pretense of Davidimir's back taxes with the state, his debts with the Polish tailors, his I.O.U.'s with gambling houses, and an unusually large bill with various inns of loose reputations and loose women. By the mercy of their royal kindness and the Imperial (now larger) pocket purse, the Czar Nicky and his wife Alexie (the one with the big boobs and sweet smile) have taken upon themselves to transport their penniless 4th cousin (twice removed) to the royal palace. Davidimir is to live with them in the cellar of the Palace and learn an honest trade. He was sent to the Palace Kitchens to learn to be a cook in them fancy Russian dishes. It was hoped that Davidimir would go far away to America soon and use his new found talent of cooking and (like all the penniless Polish Princes) marry some rich fly-by-night movie star. Davidimir spends his nights by a coal-lamp going through and cutting out pictures from the old movie magazines that the sexy wife of the Czar send him. He has narrowed down his favorites to Ursula Andress, Liz Taylor, Mae West and Sophia Loren. If only he could find a woman who could be all four...sigh! Even Davidimir has dreams.

JASNY GORKI....Only Mucker Press could give this one the Podium he needs. There's more....

INSTANT ANALYSIS OF RUSSIAN MILITARY MOVEMENT AND IMPLICATIONS OF SAME.

Russia is in another revolt. The entire navy is gone to South America and the armies are all hiding until the present situation calms down.

The Czar send the Royal Fishing Fleets on Secret Missions to the Gulf of Bothenia and the Black Sea. No one will suspect a fishing fleet. The Czar just hopes that the 42 inch cannons can be kept hidden from the bordering countries. The Prime Minister also noted that while they're out there, the Royal Family might enjoy some fresh fish for dinner.

THE MOSCOW ARMY was hastily composed of fifth columnists and spies while the real army is on vacation. Granted, no one knows who is the Captain (it's a secret), but they all follow orders well. Though they do only travel at night and all 6,000 wear fake beards and eye patches.

One army remains loyal to the Czar's Family. That is the ding-bats from Warsaw. Perhaps their's is an ulterior motive. Perhaps Davidimir will use them to overthrow the government? A Polish cook as the Czar of all Mother Russia. Impossible, you say. Well, perhaps. The Warsaw army is all well dressed and crack shots and real Russian drinking and real Russian loving JASNY GORKI: Thus ends the report from Happy Valley Home, Warsaw, Poland for this month.

WUILE 3020 revisited: MORDOR DA RIVENDALE TO BEORN was successful and should not have been underlined in the last report.

Rod Walker (He of Barad Felton, Zothique, Blefescu, Barad Dorchester, etc. fame) has consented to assume the cloak of the leadership of The Men of the North. Middle Earth rejoices at the prospects of having such wit, such humor, such bloodthirstiness entering into the contest. Sauron and his black forces rejoice also...new targets for oranges, beer cans and salads!

MAPS AND RULES: Several individuals have contacted me requesting maps and rules to enable them to follow the action here. These have been available from Jeff Key (40¢ for maps and rules) only. I suggest you all write him inquiring whether he has any left. The last time we spoke on the phone, Jeff's first printing was just about depleted and I do not know whether he has had time to run off a new batch. Within the very near future, Mucker Press will make available a one sheet map and rules with some spelling revisions to the original version...just to keep everybody happy. Enclosed in this issue will be a sheet listing all provinces and their spellings. We hope this may be of some help to players and readers alike. Suggestions for revisions and additions should be sent to both Jeff Key and myself.

JASTRZAB wonders whether John Smythe has told his wife Margaret of his plans to stage a realistic JUTLAND battle with 1:700 scale ships in their new pool!

BOB KEATHLEY will be moving by the time this issue is printed. His new address will be published next issue. Same city and Zip so correspondence should arrive unhindered in the interim.

GAMESMASTER: JEFF KEY 1900 through 1905, Stan Wrobel to END.

Under THE VOICE House Rules, this game is ended as a five-man draw between the five surviving players. Noting that no supply centers changed hands in 1905, 1906, and 1907, it should have been ended there. JASTRZAB hopes that player interest will not lag in 1969B or 1969BV as was the case here.
