 Standby players are still needed for all games.

This issue is obviously late. There are numerous reasons for its lateness, being namely my entrance into college and subsequent inability to go home for a weekend until now. This is due to my burning desire to work for the Cornell Daily Sun, and the Sun's inability to decide on a weekend for initial orientation. They switched it on me, forcing me to stay at Cornell far longer than I had intended. As it is I am whipping this off in one day and entrusting its delivery to a young assistant I am just breaking in. Anyway, now that things are beginning to settle down for Grundsteit and college, Mars Vigila should settle down to a fairly regular schedule. Hopefully. Note that my address is now 12 S. Chenango St. Don't try sending moves to Cornell 'cause I don't have the facilities there to handle publishing MV, so I save everything for when I get home anyway. Don't let our playfull jokes get to you - we have no intention of raising the sub rate.

The Ozar acknowledges receipt of the English answer to Russia's letter, albeit public and long awaited. Patiently has he awaited the response, and patiently will he construct a deadlock. Then England will have its opportunity to test France's patience. Conrad would appreciate it if you'd just shift a little more into the Med, Mark....

Kiel (Reuters) - The exciting dispatches of conflict between the northern powers came in to the dispatch desk today, covered with salt water. The identity of these powers will remain (confidential) xxxxxxxx. A hint included said potential northern seapowers. That limits it to France, Russia, or England.
