Here, after muchos, multos, and many delays, postponements, and other excuses, is the tardy, but brilliant 8th issue of the Chronicles. For those who have not seen it before, be it known that it is a rag (zine? journal, perhaps?) catering to that perversion called diplomacy. In addition it carries some of the attempts by one of the editors to enlighten the world on subjects of miscellaneous, if any, interest. Occasionally some tidbit may be useful - who knows?

Enough circumnavigating the proverbial scrub vegetation. We have finally decided to recognize the rest of the world, wherefore this issue should be going out to all editors for whom we have addresses. We'll trade on an all for all basis, sending out 'zine out in batches of two. Currently we have two completely local wars in progress, co-ordinated by those two master-minds, those paragons of perfection:

London (April 1): Britons rule the waves!!! Britain is the undisputed king of the sea. All unfriendly fleets that dissagree must therefore be destroyed. The foreign office of Britain therefore finds it necessary to destroy the Russian fleet in Berlin and the Turkish fleet in the Ionian sea. The friendly french fleets will remain unmolested, and we thank them for their help.

Rule Britannia, Rule Britannia
Britons never never shall be slaves
For Britain rules the waves.

And for all other fleets which do not recognize british supremacy over the seas, "You shall be delt with later!!!!"

Geneva (April 2): Delt????

London (April 14): Gamesmaster Graebner has been accepted as a fellow of the royal society for his outstanding work in the field of diplomavy, it was announced today by his gracious majesty. The government of England has sent an escotr to Switzerland to bring him to london. It was also said that the foreign office will use this opportunity to discuss the frightening Italian situation with Mr. Graebner in the hope of preventing a world war.

Geneva (april 15): Police today announced that Graebner, the infamous bookie has escaped their latest attempts at bringing him to justive. Graebner, known as the gamesmaster, is noted especially for the betting associated with the election of popes. After the recent election of Lecherius XII at odds of 13 - 1, he escaped a police trap by disguising himself as a race hourse.

London (April 28): Madame X was arrested today in the strees of London for what police officials called indecent exposure. Her skirt was measured to be four inches below her knee. (Tsch, tsch, how indecent of police to measure her skirt.)

Berlin (May 17 $\frac{1}{2}$): The Czar of all Russia had a surplus fllet destroyed here at high noon today. The English to their extreme consternation, discovered that the entire fleets cargo consisted of cricket pelts, destined for sale in Gascony. The hungry English sailors, in their ignorance of the galloping gourmet thought that these were the famous Russian delicasy, Caviar, and quickly ate the entire 43,781 long tons of the cricket pelts. The English admirals enslaved French chef abruptly resigned his commission, by jumping into the Baltic, and swimming for Russia at three times the speed of the fastest English dreadnaught.

Moscow (November 13): A mad pianist, Serge Rachmaninoff, was killed here today after playing a piece called "Vocalise". It seems his wife, who was vocalising too it, struck the resonant note of the Czar's gold filling just as that notary was gargling with Listerine. The resultant Listerine stream struck a cold guard, who jerked the trigger of his gun, wounding a pigeon roosting on a nearby statue of the Czar, which fell on a queer named Molotov, mixing up a cocktail. The resultant bang fractured the piano, sending the key for A flat above middle C through Rachmaninoff's stomach.

MOSCOW (Sept 24¹/₂, 1905): The Imperial Guards of the Czar of All Russia rescued a French chef from the Gulf of Bothnia early this morning. The chef explained to the Czar (the Czar speaks 17 languages with great ease, 31 with moderate fluency, and enough English to understand that English is not worth learning.) that the English sailors stationed near Berlin had eaten 43,781 long tons of cricket pelts. The Czar, with a smile of amusement, announced that the eating of cricket pelts has been found to cause sterility. The only cure was a seven year diet of a special chili made from an obscure recipe known only to a peasant. This Pollack peasant years ago left Bohemia and settled in what is called Saskatchewan, an unimportant recently created province in western Canada. The Czar was quoted as stating: "This peasant is one D.P."

PRESS RELEASES:

BERLIN: The Imperial German Government wishes to inform the people of its majestic and ever-growing Empire, that Kaiser "B" and Chancellor "BAD" being open minded and willing to keep up with the times, have ordered the disbanding of the German Board of Censorship, and that they frown on censorship in any form.

They also wish to express their disgust at the British Administration's cut of monetary allowances to the critical but inspiring cultural publication "Carry On" and at their attempts at suppression of its more progressive views of their philosophers.

CONSTANTINOPLE:(April 19): The Sultan announced that the scientists here (reported success in their latest hush-hush project. This statement was made in reply to questions asking why Syria, Armenia and Ankara have been unoccupied for the last 2 years. Aboard the steamship HAREN-CARE-FOR-EM (August 7): In the Eastern Med.
aboard his luxury yacht the Sultan was seen to be relaxed and in good health. To questions concerning the troubles of the scientists in Eastern Turkey he replied (after a long drink of vacurt): "The area is temporarily over-run by something coming through a temporal displacement machine invented by R. G. Wells while on vacation in the Levant. The scientists keep participating in things about crickets and the value of cricket belts"

EPISTLE ON GEOMETRY

And now, brethren and sistern, hear yee this work, as it was told unto us coming down from the one city unto the other.

And he took the good book down from it's resting place and he opened it, and he sayeth to the multitudes.

"Behold there appeareth onto the board of black a triangle. And out of the darkness cometh a voice which sayeth:

"Lo, it is giveth unto us that the first side is equal even unto a second, and lo when we look again, we see that even unto us who know naught, the angles, yea those angles opposite even those same first and second sides, shall henceforth be equal, one unto the other; and that when we behold again this same triangle, we see that even the converse holdeth true."

The voice sayeth that this shall hereafter and henceforth come to be called the Isocetes Triangle Theorem, yea, ever unto us theorem number ten.

For we who are versed in the numbers of the land, for the good book's sake surely car count to ter." And so saying, he closeth the good book and replaceth it onto the shelf, and he turneth unto the multitudes, and sayeth in a loud voice;

"Behold, O ye of little faith, know ye that this word is true. Ye shall be learned in this theorem if I must smite thy person upon thy brow, and poundeth it into thy skull, even 'till death cometh unto thee.

And, lo, ye shall have a test this very day, and if thou canst gain an hundred percent, ye shall serve detentions great in number, now and forevermore."

The day of reconing hath cometh unto thee.

(The above desertation was submitted by Randy Smith - He gets a couple of free issues for it. /-/jrnz/-/)

THE GERMAN JOKE DEPT

This time we meet a typical Hamburg character - Klein Erna (literally little Erna). In this story, Klein Erna is sitting on a park bench with her boy friend Fidi. After some time spent in mutual contemplation, Klein Erna asks, "Do you want to see where they took my appendix out?" Fidi enthusiastically says, "Yes". Klein Erna then points out an old building next to the park, and says, "It was in that hospital on the top floor, second window from the left."

THE PHYSICAL ILLNESS

Solid State Prof; The partition function or 'Zusstardsumme' is a useful quantity, since the negative derivative of the logarithm thereof with respect to the product of Boltzmann's constart with the Kelvin temperature is the energy of the state under consideration."

Stage Direction; Two minutes of instrumental Vocalise.

In this column we are starting on a crusade: Kill Crickets. For every 100 cricket pelts turned in by any person, this editor will donate one free issue of the Cronicles.

Over the years, many disasters have hit the world. The latest and most serious of these is Nemedian Cronicles, published on an irregular basis. Subs are five cents each for local yokels and 2.15¢ for out of towners, mailed in batches of two. We will trade on an all for all basis. Due to a shoestring budget, there are few, if any, back issues available.
