STANDBY LIST

If your name appears below you are on STABBACKS standby list. If you want on or off let me know. Any player that plays out a standby position will receive three issues to their sub. Names do not appear in any special order. I am always looking for new standbys. BRUMBAUGH, COOPER, YOUNG, SMITH, CHRISTIE, EARLY, MCKINNON, MCCRUMB, WILCOX, BEAVER, AND ZARSE.

STABBACK #7

This game is almost filled. I will start this game as soon as I receive all the game fees that are due. That means you might get a flyer from me between now and the next deadline. The following players owe me the game fee: Cooper, Perry, Mckinnon, Young, Rivera. The following players are signed up for the game.

Cooper, Perry, Zarse, McKinnon, Young, Rivera, Kuhbier

This space is not being used this time around.

Welcome to the 14th issue of STABBACK. At this very moment we have five regular Diplomacy games in process. I have one more regular game filled but I am waiting for Game fees for the five people who don't have them in. In this issue we see the end of the first game to be played in STABBACK. That was the 1939 III game and it was won by Germany, played by Hugh Christie. Also in this issue we see a new subzine run by Robert Smith. The name of this new subzine is POLITIQUE. So take a look at it. If you need a copy of the house-rules just send a S.A.S.E.. Game turns run every 21 days and STABBACK will be published in the next seven days. Don't forget to vote in the runestone poll.

Last weekend I went up to PENN STATE and Bob Smith and I played Third Reich. We played from 1939 to 1942. I was Germany and Bob was Russia. We had two other people playing and they played Italy and the other played the rest of the allies. Well it was long and we played about eight hours. So at the beginning of 1942 we decided to check victory point cities and call a winner. It so happen that Italy and I had a marginal Victory over the allies. Italy had conquered the Med and Vichy France came in as a minor ally on my side. I had conquered the low countries, France, Denmark, Norway, and pushed all the way to Lienngrad and had captured that city. Malta also fell to the Italians. It was a good game and Bob and I were really slugging it out on the Eastern front. England was hurting from losing the med and my sub warfare was taking its toll on the English. The allies did invade France but I sent alot of troops back and they pulled out. Finland was crushed by the Rusians rly in my invasion. Good game over all. Recommend it to anybody.

STABBACK's RATING SYSTEM

I have decided to rate all players that play in STABBACK. This will only be for games played in this zine, it will not take into account any other games played in other zines. This is to see how you rate agianst the other players in this zine and I will keep it up and publish a list every time a game ends.

The system is fairly simple. You will be given a number of points for how you finish in a game that you play. These are for a win, survival, elimination, drop, and playing out a standby. The system is for only regular Diplomacy games. Once you are awarded points you add the total of points and divide by number of games you have played in. e.g. Completed two games and you have a total of 8 points for both games. You divide 8 by two and you come up with your score. In this case it would be 4.00.

The number of points will be awarded at the end of a completed game and they will be awarded the following number of points for the following:
Win=5, survival=3, elimination=1, drop=0, playing out a standby=1, If you want the game to count as a stand by you must inform me and I will add one more game to your total, if you do not want the game inculed in your toal you must tell me, so I won't include it in your total. If you chose not to include the game you are awared the 1 point for playing out a standby positior and donot get the game include, so you recieve 1 piont free to your total of points. It seems to me the only time a player will elect. to take credit for the game is when he wins the game as a standby or in some cases opt the survival points. e.g. 1st game, win=5, 2nd game, sur=3, 3rd SBPSur and the game doesn't count in your toal number of games. If you inclu you would have a 3.66, if you don't include the SB and take the 1 free it would be 4.50. The choice is yours. Comments welcomed.

Politique

Published by Robert J. Smith

Issue # 1

April 9, 1985

This is Politique, a subzine dedicated to the play of Diplomacy and its variants. I will be taking Malaguena's place as Stab-Back's subzine. The first game that I will be running will be a variant known as Blind-Deadman Diplomacy. The players know only their own positions and those of others that they come into contact with. There is one other way to gain information that is of my own design which I call spying. There are no negotiations because nobody knows who anybody else is. It's one big secret. The players will receive each turn, a copy of their moves, a map of their positions, and the results of their spying. The entire set of moves will be published in Stab-Back for the nonplayers enjoyment on a trial basis. Because of the secrecy of the game, I am asking that noone converse in any way with anyone else about the contents of the game.

The second game I will be running will be the 1898 global variant of Diplomacy. The game has 12 countries that are playable: England, France, Germany, Italy, Austria, Russia, Turkey, USA, Japan, China, India, and Spain. I have already got 1 person signed up for this game, it's Howard, so here's probably your only chance to play with your GM and probably your only chance to get back at him for that bad adjudication.

The game fee for the Blind-Deadman game is $3.50, which will be my standard game fee; however, because of the cost of printing up all of the maps necessary for the 1898 game (it truly is a global achievement) I'm going to have to ask that those wishing to play first of all send me a large business envelope and pay a $5.00 game fee. I know it's a lot but the winner gets 10 free issues of Stab-Back on me. I may have to raise this fee slightly but I will try not to.

Send your preference lists to:

Robert Smith
509 McKean Hall
University Park PA, 16802
(814) 865-9128

Don't forget your game fees too!!!!

On the next page are the special rules for the Blind-deadman game. A special notice for all you Dawn of the Dead fans out there; Coming this summer to a theatre near you ——— DAY OF THE DEAD ——— the final conclusion to the story that began with Night of the Living Dead back in 1968. Written, Directed, and Edited by the same man. Don't miss it!!!!

Special Rules for Blind-Deadman Diplomacy

The following rules are adjustments to Stab-Back's houserules and players should refer to those rules at the same time as reading these. Avalon Hill's 1976 Rules of Diplomacy will also be used.

- 1.0 the game fee for Blind-deadman is $3.50, and no sub fee is required.
- 2.0 "I will avoid putting...." is eliminated
- 3.0 Once a game has been organized each player will be informed of his country assignment.
- 4.0-10.0 no changes
- 11.0 I will only declare a draw if there are no builds or removals for any country in a period of three years. This rule is subject to my discretion.
- 12.0-14.0 no changes
- 15.0 Press will be subject to exceptional scrutiny, it will not be published if I feel that it any way compromises the secrecy of the player's identity. Players are encouraged, however, to send in press that may help to confuse other players.
- 16.0 Players will be informed of the positions of their own units, units of other nations that they have come into contact with, and units of other players that have entered territory last occupied by the players own pieces in the fall, thus the occupation of non-supply centers can become very important.
- 17.0 Spying is the only other way to gain information may be gained. There are two types of spying, direct and indirect.
 - 17.1 Direct spying- a player may ask me a question about another nation that would be of a type that a spy could find out-an example is-"How many builds did France get this turn?" and I will send an answer according to the reliability degree. Bear in mind that the difficulty, specificity, and importance of the information will effect the reliability degree.
 - 17.2 Indirect spying- a player who doesn't ask for direct spying may receive information anyway. This will be determined randomly and may or may not be useful and is also subject to reliability degree.
 - 17.3 Reliability Degree- There are three reliability degrees all relating to a % that tells whether or not you can believe the information: unconfirmed(25%), reliable(50%), very reliable(75%). The %'s are what help me determine whether or not to tell you the truth, a lie, or a partial truth(which would still be considered under a lie for my purposes). Example: Unconfirmed reports indicate a Turkish advancing on the outskirts of Sevastopol. this is "unconfirmed" so there is only a 25% chance of the whole thing being true.
- 18.0 The GM is judge and jury. If you have a problem with a ruling feel free to ask me about it, but don't hound me; I can get very irate!!
