

HOW TO WASTE A WEEKEND cont....

Friday turned out to be the best day of the convention. I finally got a chance to meet some of the crazy guys who think they can publish. Bruce Linsey was the first person who I met, and I ended up in a Dippy game which he was getting together, run by that bizarre and mediocre guest gamemaster/emcee, Dick Martin (you know, the short black guy.) Met BRUX, Martin, Arnett, Henricks, Dave Perlmutter (gotta be a pseudonym), and many others. This alone made the con worth coming to. We hashed over a bunch of miscellaneous ((Ed. note: Tom did the smart thing and just spelled that "misc.") stuff, but had mucho fun.

The Dip hobby meeting was a complete waste of everybody's time. I met Robert Sacks there. He acts and talks like Arnold Horshack from "Welcome Back, Kotter". I expected discussion of orphans, hobby reforms, and the like, but he just blabbed about the tourney rules, which would be discussed at the start of the tourney anyhow!

I met many people, watched some games including a STRANGE KM variant, and played several games of Dippy, including one remarkable attempt as Russia. At the start, I managed to get Germany, Turkey, and Italy on my side. However, I knew I was doomed when I found myself with three builds after the first year. Turned into an interesting grudge match in which I made sure that Austria got St. Pete rather than England.

I found out later that the game auction conflicted with the Dip tournament, so I had to miss the tourney. However, one of the games that I had been commissioned to auction off for a friend sold for a hundred bucks! That alone was worth missing the tourney. At least I didn't have to put up with Sacks!

I briefly met a TSS subber by the name of Keith Kendall. He's a decent and interesting guy who has only been in the hobby for a few months. I hope he writes press! Here are two excerpts from a letter which I since received from him:

--Why pick on Arnett? Hasn't he got enough trouble with all those Volker fakes floating around? I think Dick Martin could use a bite or two. Or how about John Daly? If we bite him, will Dogs bite us back? Ah, but we should be all bitten out by the end of Origins, eh?

--Hey! I just noticed something! Your page numbers run backwards from 16 to 1! Is that what you mean by "left-handed justification"? I'll be damned! ((Probably.))

Well, hope you do well (did well?) at Origins, and I'm sorry if I stabbed you (HEH HEH HEH). ((So YOU'RE the *&@%$#@! English player!))

Hey, that was the first quasi-letter I ever printed. Feel honored! Keith also has good taste; obvious, since he subbed to TSS. (If you believe that one, I know a guy near Harrisburg who'd like to sell you his house.)

Which reminds me: Have you ever noticed that TSS uses this green paper, which glows in the dark? Got it really cheap from Bob Kerstetter, who incidentally is selling his house in Middleburg, which is only minutes away from TMI.

..... and now, time for the boring stuff:

- 1) Sub rates will go up to $6.00 on August 15. Gamefees will remain at the present level of $1.00. The increase is to offset the costs of printing (talk about bad puns!)
- 2) Hey, somebody listened! Thanks to everyone who submitted press items this month. Keep it up!

Greg Gurski. If you've never seen my basement, it's a cold, damp, but roomy place with a few large tables, including a pool table on which we often set up games in play. My brother John decorated some exposed girders with dozens of Genesee beer cans, and this has caught the attention of many people. Well, I strung a wire behind a long row of cans, figuring that only one person could be assinine enough to pull it after I added a sign saying "DO NOT PULL". When the other six of us were all there and Greg was still unseen, we decided to pick countries and give Greg whatever was left over, which turned out to be Russia. I drew Germany. As the rest of us were about to begin negotiating, Mr. Gurski showed up. Greg did the obvious thing, and pulled the string, bringing 60 beer cans crashing down like rolling thunder! So I spent most of Spring 1901 retrieving cans from the floor.

Well, order-reading time came. Needless to say, I found a French army in Burgundy, an Italian army in Tyrolia, and this Russian opening: F BtP-Lvn; A War-Sil; A Mos-War. I figured at that point that the game was hopeless, but the cunning Turk (I'll call him Ray) singled me out and proposed some long range plans. If I'd help him against Austraa and Russia, he'd try to relieve the pressure on me.

With a glimmer of hope in my greedy eyes, I soon convinced Russia and England to call off their attacks upon me, and I soon gained quasi-reasonable relations with everybody on the board, except the untrusting Austraa player (might as well call him Mikel)

From that point on, Russia grew weaker and weaker (England crossed his buddy Greg) while France swept toward Italy. Between Turkey, Italy, Russia, and myself, Austria had met his maker. ((Ed. note: I can't help it if I inspire cooperation!))

Then came the low point of the game, where Greg showed his "Blind Stupidity"; all he had left was Warsaw, Vienna, Budapest, and the remains of the puppet A-H empire: a single army in Serbia. Greg and Mike then demanded that they could combine countries to form the despicable "Polish Republic". At that point, France sold out to me and the other players lost interest in the game, resulting in its premature end.

I guess there must be some sort of moral to this sad story, but I can't find one myself. Anybody who can, feel free to submit your moral for this tragic tale. Winner gets two free issues.

The CHRONICLES of the JIHAD

by MP Barno

Nominology? Terminology? Nominalization? Argh, I don't even know what to call it. Anyhow, the problem is that of naming games, provinces and all kinds of assorted Stuff.

As for games, many players hold many positions in each of several different games, run by different GM's in a variety of zines. Bernie Oaklyn is currently playing in approximately 60 games by his count, and others exceed even that figure. So what is 1979 KY, or 1980Cjb, or R6, or Etti? To me, at least, the answer seemed obvious in discerning what game a certain code stands for. Call a game by its zine, game type, and a number to distinguish one TSS Diplomacy game from another. Thus, we have TSS/Dip-02, etc. However, you might think that the games would be numbered in sequence. In TSS? Sure, just like the pages. TSS/Dip-04 was announced quite some time ago, but orphans don't wait. Thus, TSS/Dip-05, and now two more have come along with Dip-04 yet dormant. Last month, Tom made note of Ettin as TSS/Dip-07 and Hippogriff as TSS/Dip-08. Well, Dip-06 was never really announced, so I'm changing gamestart "Hippogriff" to TSS/Dip-06. This should be used in reference to the game in all communications, at least as far as we're concerned. Same with "TSS/Dip-07" for Ettin.

Next problem: provinces. You should be familiar with the necessity of distinguishing between "Nor's". For these, you might write the name out, and be sure in any event to know the abbreviations listed in each zine's house rules. We also use "Lvp" and "Lvn" for Liverpool and Livonia, just to avoid confusion. ("What? He convoyed through Bal and Bot to my coast? I thought his fleet was in the North Sea!") For gulfs, the gulf's "of" name is usually used. (Lyo=Lyon, Gulf Thereof.) Tyrrhenian Sea is TyS, but what about Tyrolia? Tom uses "Tyr", but what happens when Italy orders "A Ven-Tir"? The GM has no alternative but to throw out the order, which we avoid where it's possible. This case just can't be 'interpreted'. ("Whaddya mean Trieste? I wanted to go to Tirolia!") I use Tyo; Tom usually uses Tyr. In this zine, either is acceptable. Tyl may also slip in on occasion.

This zine itself has experienced name problems. It started off as a nameless newsletter, with the prize for winning the one game (now TSS/Dip-01) being the privilege of naming the thing. (One wit of the nit variety suggested the Barno Bullsh__er. It's a good thing I don't suspect you, Bob.) Other pubbers have plugged us as "From the Throne" and "Terrible Swift Sword", while Tom has one thousand "The Shogun's Swood" labels. If TSS is ever faked, the titlehead should read "Terrible Shotgun's Swood". And furthermore, I can't decide whether "Chronicles" should be singular or plural.

Ad nauseam....

LEXICON OF DIP: Mark Berch has taken a triple issue of his DIPLOMACY DIGEST and created "The Lexicon of Diplomacy". The Lexicon is 35 pages of tactical ploys, variants, organizations, gamestart openings (from the well-known to the hopelessly obscure), GM'ing and publishing jargon, famous press bylines, strategic concepts, scoring and rating systems, various tricks, and special projects. It looks very good. There are two ways to get the Lexicon: you can send $1.25 to Mark (address below), or you can take this opportunity to subscribe to DIP DIGEST at $3.00/10 issues and take the Lexicon as the first three issues of your sub. DD carries no games, only Dip-related articles. The address is:

Mark Berch, 492 Naylor Place, Alexandria, VA 22304.

MEDIOCRECON I: I'd like to try to get at least 7 of us NYers together for a day of FTF gaming and so forth. This would probably be late in August or during the Thanksgiving break. The location is open for discussion; there are several good places in the Binghamton area, including mv home, which are good, or we could find a spot

The crowd goes wild and our hero, accepting the award, says, "I just let McPheeters send in my moves for me, there's nothing to it."
THRILLSVILLE: Bob, please note that this turn's first move is not underlined.

Bruce Linsey, Novice Project Director, has just released his prototype edition of Supernova, a new Novice Packet, and should have the production version available shortly. The packet, designed to give a new Diplomacy player a comprehensive introduction to the PBM Dippy hobby, contains definitions, question-answering, sample orders and adjudications, articles on stabbing, press, writing, psychological play, variants, reputations, tactics, and strategic/tactical intros to each power. Paris-Berlin: I know how. Because of your power-grabbing attitude.

When you say "Forget Belgium, it is mine", you are asking for trouble. Besides, if you took Denmark in Spring '01, you and I wouldn't be in this fix. You still have 5 centers, don't ya?

Till next year, anyway, when I'll be at 8.

St. Petersburg-Berlin: What!? Three against one! Not again? You don't suppose that this is indicative of a credibility problem?

(Paris) Alright!!! Chess! I can play that better anyway. I hereby proclaim myself the best "Get Your Moves In" player of all time. I have only missed twice in 222,504 games. Oaklyn is "choaklin". Can I have Iceland?

ST. PETERSBURG (IRIB) -- The Imperial Russian Information Bureau apologizes to its subscribers and retracts the news that it has been disseminating concerning the death of Ottoman Turkey's Sultan. According to recent reports, the Sultan is alive, though not well. Upon hearing the news that the Czar's own information agency had been in error, he furiously ordered that Europe's "sick old man" be helped back into his grave, so that the facts will jibe with the information.

(Belgrade) After many vain and futile attempts, I have succeeded in reaching that small building known as a "Post Office", and have gotten hold of some little pieces of paper (stamps) and some slightly larger ones (postcards) and will henceforth be able to correspond. Sorry about any unintentionally ominous diplomatic quiet.

(ITA) The king condemned his court jester to death by hanging because of his incessant punning. However, the jester filed appeal after appeal (all of which were denied, of course) and extended his life by a year. During this time he told not a single pun, and because of this, the king granted him a pardon. When informed of the king's decision, the jester blurted out, "No noose is good news!"

....He was hanged the next morning at sunrise.

The supply center chart can probably be found on the next page.

RUS-GER & FRA: Whenever your governments come back from vacation, my ambassadors would have your ears.

ENEWETAK: (That's the official U.S. Government spelling, according to Mike Wallace) Those two's governments have been on vacation for years, as evidenced by their lack of planning and leadership. (Charlotte, NC) The French Emperor shall henceforth, as decreed by royal French law, be addressed as "His Eminence, Charlottemagne" in celebration of his arrival in the new French capital, just a tad southeast of the Great Smoky Mountains.

ENIWETOK: I had ENG down for an NMR on the 16th until Tom told me that he was sure that James had sent him moves for this game. Tom finally found them on the back of Mr. Morgan's Dip-02 orders. Jim, I don't really mind your sending your moves to Tom, but only if you send them in early and on a separate piece of paper. While I'm at it, I might as well remind you all to turn in each game's orders, same GM or not, on separate sheets of paper. Thanx.

Thanx, Gene, for playing it out to the dauntless, total, bloody, ultimately destructive, humiliating, embarrassing, feeling-of-impotence-inspiring end. Remember to add the date and sign your orders. Thank and good luck, especially to Steve O'Brien, who has a shot at breaking Gene's record for longest-lived TSS Austria (eliminated Fall 1903). Enjoy!

I always seem to lie to you. On the bottom of Page 10 of TSS #6, the design/copyright notices appear. We made the mistake of retyping a set of rules on which this notice appeared. However, we've never put it on the bottom of the front page, nor shall we. Ha ha on you.

TSS/KM-01

TSS/KM-02

There is a small problem coming up which may develop into a big one if it is not handled early.

I'll say it straight off: Dan Palter has resigned from both games and Bob Kerstetter from TSS/KM-01. And I don't know of any standbys. Normally, Dan and Bob wouldn't drop a game, but their personal motives are good. I would like to propose the following: We vote for both games either a sole winner for KM-01 (Alex?) or a tie amongst all the players in KM-02. Then those players in both games will receive a free gamestart for KM-03, which will have all of the active players from 01 and 02. For the record, they are: Bob Snyder, Alex Service, Bill Hume, and Bob Kerstetter.

The reason would be to prevent running two poor games, with only two active players in each, and instead combining them into one. The only loss you would take is the time you spent in the game(s) you are in now. I will delay both KM games this issue to allow time for you to respond to this important matter. I think the game would be more enjoyable, since both games running now have had their mishaps. Please write me on this immediately, so that we can get back on track.

By the way, a revised set of KM houserules will be finished by issue #12 of TSS. I plan to clear up all of the problems I have found, including all those which TSS turned up. page 5

An interesting, if sublime note from Ben Schilling:

"If you look at a map of Detroit, you should see:

- 1) Detroit is north of Canada.
- 2) Farmington Hills is northwest of Detroit."

Do you long-time TSS readers feel that that submission qualifies Ben for the Endwellian Society of Mediocrity?

ANOTHER NOTE FROM MPB

People have continued to ask me what MP stands for. I told you, it's "Mediocre Person"! But if you don't like that, here are some other suggestions I've received:

- Military Police (sorry, too mundane)
- Moderately Paranoid
- Militant Pun-hater
- Melonie's Prince
- The Mad Polack (I'm of Galician descent)

Yes, folks, I finally got eight people ready to duke it out in yet another exciting Machiavelli game. I just hope that this game has more life in it than TSS/Mac-01. The players, addresses, and positions are as follows:

France: Dan Palter; P.O.Box 156, Cedarhurst, NY 11516

Famine Roll for Spring 1454: 8; Bad Year

Row Roll: 7

Provinces Affected: Bari, Slavom Montf, Urbin, Forno, Como, Trent.

Column roll: 10

Provinces affected: Herze, Pianc, Trent, Saluz, Trevi, Naple, Istri.

Variable Income die rolls:

FRA: rolls 1 -- 1d	FLO: rolls 5 & 1 -- 5d total
AUS: rolls 5 -- 4d	PAP: rolls 1 -- 2d
MIL: rolls 5 -- 4d	NAP: rolls 1 -- 1d
VEN: rolls 4 & 1 -- 6d total	TUR: rolls 3 -- 3d

Adjusted initial ducat count after initial builds:

FRA: (-1); AUS: 2; MIL: 4; VEN: 7; FLO: 5; PAP: 3; NAP: (-3); TUR: 2

Game notes:

- 1) We will be playing the "Balance of Power" scenario, using all optional rules except #'s V, VI, IX, and X.
- 2) Move results will be given in standard Machiavelli notation, with the following additions:
 - a) underlined moves fail; and
 - b) an asterisk* before a move indicates that the unit is dislodged.
- 3) Seeing how complex the "winter" season is, I would like to use the following system. After each fall turn, I will state a deadline for players to submit the appropriate builds/removals/retreats along with a self-addressed postcard. When I've received all orders (or when the deadline is reached), I send all orders to each player on the postcards you enclosed previously. This will reduce the number of conditional orders. If you all agree to follow this procedure each winter turn, I'd be more than willing to do it. It may cost you a buck or so, but it would simplify matters considerably.
- 4) Note that countries with negative adjusted ducat levels have until the upcoming deadline to borrow enough ducats to pay maintenance on their units, or will have to disband a unit before the Spring 1454 moves.
- 5) Here is an outline of the format for move results and information to be printed each season:
 - a) Bribes
 - b) Builds
 - c) Moves
 - d) Ducat count
 - e) Famine notes: locations affected each Fall, units killed by famine each Spring.

PAP	0	9	3	9	26	-12	14d
NAP	3	15	5	2	36	-18	18d

*This assumes PAP F Ancon r City; otherwise, add 1 to NAP and subtract 1 from PAP.

GM Notes:

- 1) Jonathon NMRd his fourth time. I am therefore giving the Venetian position to Don Swartz, last turn's standby. Good luck!
- 2) A win is obtained by owning 15 cities and one other player's "empire" at the end of any season.
- 3) The Papal player proposes a concession to Naples. Dan says that "He deserves it!".
- 4) MIL A Genoa can retreat to City, Como, Pianc, Berga, Trent, or OTB.
PAP F Ancon can retreat to City, Romag, or OTB.
- 5) No press. Get with it, guys!

- f) Plague notes: units killed by plague each Spring.
 - g) New Province Ownership -- provinces which change hands in their entirety; not provinces with uneliminated garrisons.
 - h) Income for upcoming spring (each fall)
- 6) GM notes: I feel that this game has a lot going for it, with everyone quite enthusiastic. I hope to see a lot of press and player interaction, the lack of which made TSS/Mac-01 a dud. The only potential problem that I see is the fact that several of the players are from NY. However, I tried to separate them on the board. Good luck to all of you, especially Dan and Kevin, who will be in a heap of trouble if they don't gather up some ducats.

Well, since TSS doesn't print photo press, the rest of this page will be devoted to personal notes, page references, and so forth.

Wait! Tom here. How about our Classy front & back covers. If I wasn't writing this, I would think by just looking at the paper that John Daly faked TSS. We'll get a perfect issue sooner or later. Mikey, by the looks of page #1, I think your typewriter needs a front end alignment, or at least a right hand justification.
