Trantor I (1964D) - Spring 1913
Trantor II (1965U) - Fall 1904
Massif I (1965E) - Fall 1908

sTab #1 - Spring 1906

NEXT ISSUE DEADLINE: 11 JUNE 1966

sTab is the periodically bi-weekly journal of the YUDC, currently chronicling Games 1964D, 1965E, 1965U, 1966I, and several two-man games. Subscriptions are the usual 10 for $1.00.

This issue's cover is by ATom. Last issue's was by Barbi Johnson.

Players in 1964D will note that Earl Thompson (see Trantor for address) has replaced Phil Castora as England. Players in 1965U should note that the alternate player, Charles Wells, has replaced Jock Root as Italy in that game. Where will it end?

ITALY: A Boh-Mun; A Ven-Tyr; A Rom-Ven; F Apu (S) F Ion; F Ion-hold
A Ser-Rum

Underlined moves do not succeed. The French Army Holland is annihilated, having no open retreats. The Russian Army Munich is routed and retreats to Kiel. The French Fleet Irish Sea is routed, and retreats to the Mid-Atlantic Ocean.

DEADLINE FOR "FALL 1906" MOVES IS SATURDAY, 11 JUNE 1966

Jim Latimer questioned my permitting his Army Munich to retreat to Kiel, feeling that the attack from Holland, though futile, would have prevented this. I suppose my action can be justified under the so-called "Koning Rule," but it is an application I never considered before. Is even the Koning Rule necessary here? Comment?

Underlined moves do not succeed. The Austrian Army Prussia is annihilated. The Austrian Army Venice is routed and retreats to Tuscany, the only open province. The Turkish move "A Rum (S) A Bul-Ser" fails because there is no Turkish Army Rumania (or any other sort of Army Rumania). There is a Turkish Army Galicia (as stated in sTab #12) which is unordered, and holds. The Turkish attack on the Ionian fails because of the equally supported attack on the Ionian by the French Fleet Tyrrhenian.

Players should note that James MacKenzie retains his seat as Turkey.

Game 1966I

"Winter 1901"

28 May 1966

With deepest apologies to all players I must announce that I've lost England's build move. The "Winter 1901" moves are postponed until 11 June 1966, therefore. Sorry.

group playing what my Intelligence Staff calls the Mersey Sound.

Yes, it's true we've had some conflict with the civilians. But how were my poor fellows to know that in England short hair and jeans means girls, while long hair and tights means guys? It's terribly confusing and the local police have arrested a whole battalion for indecent assault...

The general military situation today? Well... it could be worse. The cavalry patrols I've pushed inland have disappeared. Someone has told me they're out chasing foxes. We've also lost a number of men to guerilla actions by what we take to be political extremists -- Mods and Rockers. And for a while some joker named Artos the Bear was running around on a white Ajax charger making a nuisance of himself and scaring my men. We finally caught him in an open manhole and put him back in the zoo where bears belong.

The weather? Well, I would like to see the sun again. When its not raining its snowing. Although the latter is rather fun. Every day we take a little tramp through the snows... even the tramp enjoys these little outings.

Any particular complaints? Well, one... As you may note from the water falling on your head, the roof leaks. What's so infuriating is that the local workers say they're on strike and can't fix it. They even picket my HQ and in consequence my own engineers won't cross the picket lines. They keep jabbering to me about proletarian solidarity and saying things like "I'm all right, Gino, you do it!" I'd shoot them if I had enough men for a firing squad, but everybody seems to be out liberating pubs...

(As the general began to cry at this point we decently cut the interview short.)

LVOV (8 Sept. 1904) With the collapse of the Russian government in Moscow, control of the remnants of the Russian Empire was seized today by the Naked Union of Doukhobor Enlightenment (NUDE). A NUDE cabinet, seated in unclad dignity in Lvov, today assumed direction of the remaining Russian armed forces.

"Our first order to the armed forces," announced the new Chief of State, Patriarch Wrapsoff, "will be to follow the Doukhobor example and take off all their clothes. If the other armies of Europe follow this pious and salutary example, it will be impossible to distinguish friend from foe, and the war will be over."

SPITZBERGEN (27 Sept. 1904) The Russian Arctic fleet today declared itself in a state of mutiny against the anti-clothing order of the NUDE government in Lvov. From Admiral Frozenoff down to the lowliest tar, every man in the fleet opposes this measure. "Peace be damned," said one spokesman of the mutineers, "if we take off our uniforms, we'll be frozen solid long before the war is over."

The admiral announced his intention of disbanding the fleet if it is unable to secure a harbor in English-occupied Norway this fall. "English prison clothes are warmer than the new government's uniforms," he explained.

The following is a two-man game played under my Gamesmastership by Robert Lake of Scarborough and Kim Pattee of the YUDC, between November 1965 and May 1966. It is a small corner of the never ceasing warfare between Scarborough and Youngstown, which continues as a mass of two-man struggles and occasionally erupts into a motorcycle foray by the Canadians deep into YUDC territory, or a frontal assault by the Youngstown forces, with John Smythe leading the way atop his mighty Chrysler.

Stay alert for further developments.

ROBERT LAKE:	England	KIM PATTEE:	France
	Russia		Germany
	Austria		Italy

This game, by the way, is played under a popular YUDC variation, in which Turkey remains on the board, but is guarded by standing armies in her home centers (similar to Calhamar's suggestion for Italy in six-man games).
