SWLABR+SWLABR

Issue #18

March 19, 1980

-----
SWLABR is the only 'zine ever put out where the colophon is longer than the rest of the 'zine. It is the product of Konrad Baumeister, 11416 Parkview Lane, Hales Corners, WI 53130 USA (Ph: 414-425-4631). SWLABR is once again going through the stages of folding gracefully; this is its last issue in this, its second reincarnation. (Issue #11 was the last of the first incarnation, and #12-18 deal with 1978AQ and 1978AQ along.) Isn't this all fascinating?! This is EGGNOG Enterprises Production #107 if you care.

1978AQ is over. The votes have come in from Turkey (Ray Cifani) and France (Lee Kendter Sr). Germany (Karl Schuetz) has OK'd every proposal for the last few months, and so I'll assume that he goes along with the one he kept OKing a while back. (This is a dangerous assumption, but I trust I have not made a fatal mistake.) So the game ends as a two-way Turkish/French draw in Springg1911 (G key is on the fraZZ). Since Germany doesn't have his orders in, and Karl is in fact out of town, we won't bother to adjudicate the mess of orders this time, since it changes nothing anyways and I am under time pressure as it is. Y'all understandme...

And that's the message. Thanks to all of you for bearing with me on this, and thanks again for being so reliable all the time. I hope that ~~xxx~~ all of you will submit end-game statements for inclusion in EGGNOG #45 on April 10. That's where the Center and Player Rosters will be published, not here (takes too much time to do it twice, and Lee will have the information either way)/

Congratulations to all of the players. It was a fun game for all, I hope. Me included (though I hope you won't take it personally when I say that I'm glad it's over).
