GRAYTE WORMS * PART V: THE MOCTIED DRAGON

"Of doubtful species, the huttler or Purple Worm must be included in any study excepting the possibility that it is not a true dragon. The creature has no wings and no dangerous form of weapon unlike other dragons. Yet, its body shape conforms otherwise to the kind as does its general behavior. The Purple Dragon has a venomous sting in the tip of its tail, one drop of which is enough to kill an elephant. It is sly and treacherous. The species is found only in the Helmsdale Valley."

THAT CONTEST!

Following are the correct answers to each entry in the contest: several, of course, have several sources! (there may be more than are listed):

- 1.) Erest Edde as Yenneke to Arcturus by David Lindsay. (Muspel)
- 2.) Khalid: "Behrab and Rastum" narrative poem by Matteo Arnold, or The Slave Khalid of Firdausi (Firdausi is a pseudonym: Abu'l Kasim Khalid was the author's actual name.)
- 3.) Ialette Asterisks as Blue Star by Fletcher Pratt.
- 4.) Polyphemus: many works by Jason Branch Cabeil, notably The High Place (which is finally again in print), The Silver Stallion, etc.
- 5.) Ulthar: "The Gates of Ulthar" by H.P. Lovecraft.
- 6.) Wimpy: John Cabeil again: Figures of Earth and The Silver Stallion.
In this case a number of sources would have been correct for this one. Among them: The Volusunga Saga (anon.); "Das Rheingold", part of Robert Wagner's opera trilogy "Das Ring des Nibelungen"; more recently: translated by William Morris.
- 7.) Nokes: JRR Tolkien, "Smith of Wootten Major".
- 8.) Porius: John Cooper Powyst "Porius: A Romance of the Dark Ages".
- 9.) Mammydien: THE Mabinogion, (anon.); or Kenneth Morris.
- 10.) Hondoraris: any of several works by Lord Dunsany: "Idle Days on the Yarn," or "The Avenger of Perdonaris."
- 11.) Frederick Parkresser: The Land of Unreason, by P. Pratt & L. Sprague de Camp.
- 12.) Glaives Rhei: everyone missed this but Bill Linden - sounds alot like E.R. Burroughs doesn't it? It is actually from The Unholy Grail by Fritz Leiber, and is contained in the latest Fafhrd & Grey Mouser release: Swords & Deviltry.
- 13.) Hao-Tzian: no one got this one: it is from "Through the Dragon Glass", a very excellent short story by A. Merritt.
- 14.) Xedtotun: everyone got this one: Conan the Conqueror by R. E. Howard.
- 15.) Frito Bugger: from Kenney & Beard's Bored of the Rings, of Harvard Lampoon fame.
- 16.) the Runestaff: is from any of several works by Michael Moorcock.

- 31) "High History of the Runestaff" series.
- 32) the Forest Savage: The Once & Future King, by T.H. White.
- 33) Mordor: Elder Edda, or "Valley of the Worm", by R.E. Howard.
- 34) Holloman: from "The Sword of Welleran", by Lord Dunsany.
- 35) Oom: "The Wheeling of Oom" by Lin Carter.
- 36) St. Cholomond Golden: The Wood Beyond the World, by William Morris.
- 37) Avalon: many sources - to name a few: Le Morte de Arthur, by Sir Thomas Malory; Earthly Paradise, by William Morris; Tennyson...
- 38) Maikanoilien: the Kalevala, compiled by E. Lenrot.
- 39) King and Queen: The Faerie Queene, by Edmund Spenser.
- 40) Gilgamesh: The Epic of Gilgamesh, anonymous.
- 41) Persepolis: "The Princesses of Babylon," by Voltaire.
- 42) Nodwahd: "The Maze of Maal Dweb", by Clark Ashton Smith.
- 43) Elak: "Elak of Atlantis", "Dragon Moon", etc., etc.
- 44) Elak: Elak (Nutter), ie. Elak of Atlantis, "Dragon Moon", etc., etc.
- 45) Zamianwa: H.R. Edison's series: Mistress of Mistresses, Mezantian, High Priestess of Zamianwa.

Following are the results by points of those people sending answers: (out of a possible 44 and 1/2 points,) the scores were:

- Bill Linden - 40 points
Lou Pulsipher - 17 points
George Seymour - 16 points
Russell Tulp - 6 1/2 points
Andrew Phillips - 5 points

So... Bill Linden has won two positions in any of the openings now in THANGORODRIM. (BILL: excluding BARBARIA!)... (ie. pick two other games...) Please send game and choice of position... (Hint: YOUNGSTOWN VARIANT needs one more player to begin...)
