Wild 'n Woolly #129

May 3, 1968

Well, we're off again. Our current address will be good through most of July and who knows where we'll be next. Due to the inability of most of our local Post Office people to read very well; a lot of mail may not get forwarded to us either.

You'll note that I set the deadlines up three months from now to allow us to move.

JERRY POURNELLE Born in Shreveport, Louisiana, and educated in Memphis.

He joined the U.S. Army in 1950, ate mud in Korea, and then received the Regular Army appointment to West Point in 1952. (There's a story there, but we'll never get it out of him.)

He holds various degrees, including a Master's and has completed the requirements for a Ph.D. We withhold the subjects rather than give away some of his strategy for some game perhaps. (and partly because our notes are illegible) However, we can tell you that most of his degrees, I think, were from the University of Washington.

He has held positions in the aerospace industry (Engineering and systems analysis) from 1957 to 1966.

He is now an Associate Professor and Director of Research for Pepperdine College at Los Angeles.

His recreational activities include sailing (which includes trying to drown one of this country's best writers), Fencing (which includes Tournaments), and Go (which he plays rather arrogantly). He also owns a hand-made war game, the size and scope of six A-H games. Also, I think, he had something to do with designing some sort of Space-game, using current weapons systems, and recently did some work on a Deep Space game which may or may not be published by Dan Alderson.

(Berlin) Despite temporary setbacks in the Ukraine, the Wermacht marches on to victory. French forces will soon control the mediterranean, requiring the removal of Italian forces. German forces will regain control of the Ukraine shortly. Vienna cannot be held. Hoch der Kaiser!
(Stuttgart) German Generals today drank a toast to the Scottish expatriate in control of the Russian forces in congratulations to the fiendishly brilliant strategy of the famous Mac Callum More.

(Aosta) "And the Hand of the Master Crossman von Metzke was soon felt upon all who would or could oppose the new Order of der Kaiser.
